THE GREAT REUNION

"And somewhere yet in the hilltops,
Of the country that hath no pain,
He will watch in His beautiful doorway
To bid us welcome again."

RESULTS

THEORY OF THE CASE

It is assumed that the system is in a steady state and that the input is a constant value. The output is then determined by the system's response to this input. The results of the analysis are presented in the following table.

P R E F A C E

Few families have been drawn together by such close ties as the Western New York Higbies.

In my childhood I became interested in the history of my ancestors and loved to wander in the old cemetery in Penfield and have the relationships explained to me as I read the names. It was said that "three-quarters of the number resting there were related." I never tired of hearing Father tell of the journey to Penfield by wagon when he was seventeen and how his father had never heard from other members of his family who journeyed farther west.

I remember my thrill when visiting in Cleveland in 1924 to find the "Higbee" Department Store, one of the finest there, and wondering if the owners could be some of my long lost cousins; but I have not yet found out. We had been holding annual picnics for years; but it was not until my cousin, William H. Higbie, of Huntington High School, told me of the reunions on Long Island that I found our real cousins.

I married in 1885 and moved to Florida. Two years later Dr. MacDairmid, a physician from Inverness, Scotland, came to DeLand to live and became a close friend of my husband. To our amazement and delight he discovered a rare copy of the Forbes Genealogy among his father's books, which he had brought with him; and he was kind enough to give it to us.

That renewed my interest and I began to gather data on all branches of our family. I wrote to Town Clerks, Postmasters, searched court records, sought the aid of everyone who could complete and connect broken lines. I was fortunate indeed in 1914 to receive the aid of the Genealogist, William A. Eardeley, of Brooklyn, who gave me most of my material, also Homer W. Brainard.

My husband wrote to his mother for his direct line and not long after a letter came from a cousin in New York, of whom he had never heard, giving him our line leading back to Captain James Forbes, who came to America, which joined us to our ancestors at Culloden House, near Inverness, Scotland. The Forbes Family dates back to 870. Martin (Genealogical Collections, Vol. 2, Page 17) says that "one Salvathias Forbes married Moravilla, daughter of Gregory, the great King of Scotland, about 870, and that all the Forbeses in Scotland are descended from him." In the Catholic Encyclopedia, Vol. IX, Page 232, we are told that the Higbies go back to 779 in England.

The will of Edward Higbie on Page 5 was sent to me by William Eardeley, Genealogist, in 1914, with the request that I keep it in confidence until his book was published. He must have passed on soon after, as no trace of him or his book has been found. Since I have kept my agreement for over twenty years, I feel that I am entitled to publish it.

When I handed in our records to the Rochester Centennial Committee in 1934, I was told that it was probably the earliest record of any two families in Rochester.

I am still anxious to find the other members of the family who journeyed farther west in 1835, probably members of the family of William⁴, whose records were not given by John Thomas⁵.

I have relied upon the press reports of the reunions for the names of the speakers and officers elected.

I trust that any errors of dates, facts, or omissions will be reported to me so that they may be corrected. I hope also that you, who receive this book, will insert in your copy added data in regard to your own lines.

Homer W. Brainard, Genealogist, 150 Warrentown Avenue, Hartford, Connecticut, writes: "I think it very probable that the Edward Higbyte of Aldenham was the father of the New England Edward (1620-1699) marrying again about 1619. First record in America 1648 in New London, Connecticut, dropped the t making it Higby.

His son, Capt. Edward Higby, born 1620, d. 1699, m. 1649, Jedidah Skidmore, b. 1629, daughter of Thomas and Ellen Skidmore of Stratfield, where they lived from 1654-1658; removed to Huntington, L. I., 1660. Jedidah died in 1670, and about 1673 he married, second, Abigail, daughter of John and Abigail (Smith) Adams, b. Hartford, Feb., 1659-60. Later he married her sister Lydia, b. Nov. 9, 1670, who is named in his will, and she with son Nathaniel were executors. Joined church at Middletown, Connecticut, 1674; 1677 removed to Jamaica, L. I.; 1683 removed to Huntington, L. I.

THE HIGBIE ANCESTRY

Captain Edward Higby (or Higbee, Higbie) born 1620, died 1699 (before September 21st). In Jamaica, Queens Co., N. Y. Savage's Genealogical Dictionary says, Vol. 2, p. 411: "Edward Higby was of New London, Connecticut, 1648." The three volume Whitney Genealogy, Vol. 1, p. 370, says: "Edward Higby of New London, Connecticut, had a house-lot in 1648 which he sold October 7th, 1649 for five bushels of wheat and a dog."

He married first, 1649, Jedidah Skidmore, born 1629, daughter of Thomas and Ellen Skidmore of Stratfield which was originally a Parish partly in the town of Fairfield and Bridgeport.

1st Gen. EDWARD HIGBY and wife Jedidah lived at Stratfield from 1654-58 where he owned lot No. 23 in the town. They removed to Huntington, L. I., their home being at the head of the harbor where George Scudder lived in later years. In 1660 Captain Edward Higby was engaged in the West India trade, being associated with Captain Mathews and Jonas Wood. He at one time was thought to be lost at sea and his estate was ordered settled by the Court, and his four children placed in the custody of his brother-in-law, Thomas Skidmore, Jr., but he, however, returned from this voyage (Court Record, p. 16). The printed Huntington, L. I. New York Town Records, 1653-1688, p. 12, show: "1660 the 12 of May it wase agreed by the Corte to demand the will out of Jonas Wood his hand which will belonged to Edward Higbee, it was allso agreed by the same cort that Thomas Weeke, Edward Tredwell, John Tilot shall take an inventory of the estate which is eqlent (for equivalent) belonging to Edward Higbee, which inventory is to be taken the next second day being the 14th of May in the yere 1660. It was allso agreed by the same cort that thos that are to prise the estat of Edward Higbee that they shall leve sufisient unprised as to leve his wife one seut of clothes for evry day and one seut for Lordes dayes and allso that which is convenient to cloth the children that is to say to paralel with thar Mothar--it was allso ordered by the same corte that Thomas Skidmore Junior wase to have the disposing of Edward Higbees 4 children tell they are of age to provide for themselves." (See p. 16 Court Record printed in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record at p. 184 for 1911).

In 1664 Edward Higby was the first white man to live in what is now the town of Meriden, Connecticut. He bought a large tract of land of an Indian named Scankeet.

From Colonial Records of Connecticut, Vol. 1675 - 1678, page 25, we read: "Edward Higby hath granted by this court 300 acres of land of that which was viewed by Nath'll White, Sam'l Storkin, and Sam'l Boreman, appointed by the Court held at Hartford, October 12, 1665;" and in the "History of Wallingford, Connecticut", page 22.

to the issue of political and religious freedom.

"Indian Deed" October 15, 1664

"KNOW all men by these presents that I, Scankeet Indian (abiding in or about Hartford, Conn.) Sachem owner, a true proprietor of a large tract of land in the woods towards New Haven at and about the land now in possession of Mr. Jonathan Gilbert aforesaid - Hills, rocks, brooks, swamps and all other appurtenances bounded and conformably delivered by marked trees and by the land of sayd Johnathan Gilbert and Pilgrims Harbor or River, all which sayd parcell of land with prerogatives, privileges and any kind of appurtenances thereon and thereunto belonging. It shall be lawful for the sayd Edward Higby, his heirs and assigns to improve, possess, enjoy and that forever, as fully and freely as the said Scankeet ever did or might have done.

In witness thereof by these presents I bind myself, my heirs, and assigns quietly and peacably to leave in full possession of all the premises - the sayd Edward Higby never to be molested by me the sayd Scankeet my heirs, or any other Indian or Indians whatsoever and so subscribe my name, the mark of Scankeet.

In presence and witness of Bryan Rosseter
Mary Gilbord"

"Another Indian in 1682 sold the above described to John Talcott of Hartford, who assigned his claim to the town of Wallingford in 1683. See "A Century of Meriden," page 17; also page 129.

"General Assembly, Hartford, October 11, 1666."

"Court orders Edward Higby for making and maintaining the Way over Pilgrim's Harbor passable for man and horse, shall have his estate and farm free of Countrey (rates) for this yeare and next, he maintaining the way so long aforesaid."

"History of Middlesex Co., Conn."

"Page 67." "February 1667 at the same towne meeting. The towne received Edward Higby as an inhabitant on those terms which follow to wit, that they will warne him to all town meetings if the towne men have oppurtunyty to send him word by any going that way to the farme but not being bound to send any man of purpos to warne him as also they agree with the said Higby to make a comfortable foot and horse way half way to the farme at Meriden - he making the other half next his own farme granted him by the Court as belonging to the towne." "Page 68" List of Estates in Middletown 1673.

Edward Higby

His wife Jedidah died about 1670 and he married, second, Abigail, daughter of John Adams who died Sept. 6th, 1670. The published Hartford, Conn., Probate Records show (4, p. 125): "Feb. 9, 1696-7, I, Jeremiah Adams of Huntington on Long Island, son of John Adams and grandson of "Jeremie" Adams and nephew of Thos. Greenhill make my "brother-in-law" Edward Higby Trustee and Attorney.--Witness Mary Udall." "John Adams of Hartford, Conn., died Sept. 6, 1670, widow was Abigail. His children were 1. Rebecca, aged 12, Aug. last; 2. Abigail, aged 11 next Feb.; 3. Sarah, aged 9 next March; 4. Jeremy, aged 6 last Aug.; 5. John, aged 4 last Sept.; 6. Jonathan, aged 2 last Nov.; 7. one yet unborn. (Probably Lydia who was born 1670 and was 3rd wife to Edward Higby.)

Edward and wife Abigail, Sept. 20th, 1674, joined the church at Middletown, Connecticut, coming from the First Church of Hartford. About 1677 they removed to Jamaica, L. I., N. Y., to which he and his wife were dismissed with six children, October 14th, 1677. In 1683 Edward Higbee, Moses Scudder and Thomas Higbee were found guilty of violating the Sabbath regulations of the time and confessed that they had travelled on the Lord's Day from Huntington to Hempstead for which transgression "they were sorry". In 1683 Edward Higbee purchased land and a house-lot of John Finch, Jr., in Huntington, L. I., also 12 acres of land-meadow on the south side of the Island and 8 acres on "Santepauge Neck". In 1684 John Betts deeded to Edward Higbee the "southern end" of his own house, also land because he had married his son's widow, Abigail. In 1688 Edward Higbee and wife Abigail of Queen's Village, L. I., sold to Thos. Higbee of Huntington their land at the south side of the Island of "Santepauge Neck" and in the same year they sold to Joseph Bailey their home lot and orchard and "Profit of enlargement" and disposed of their 12 acres on East Neck to Jonas Wood and Stephen Jarvis. In 1688 Andrew Gibb of Brookhaven, L. I., quitclaimed to Edward Higbee of Queen's Village, L. I., property on which he had a judgment.

Edward married third, 1690 - 1694, Lydia Adams, born Nov. 9, 1670, daughter of John and Abigail Adams. She is named in the will. Edward Higby had four children before May 12, 1660, and four children after that date - as eight are named in his will, 1699.

1. Thomas, born about 1650; married first, July 4, 1682, Mary Taylor; married second, 1697, Elizabeth _____. He had at least five children. In a deed at White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 25, 1698, he says he is a "mariner" and of Huntington, Suffolk County, N. Y., and his wife is then Elizabeth; and in a deed two days later, and at the same place, Jan. 27, 1698, he says he is a "gentleman" of Huntington, Suffolk County, N. Y., when he gives property to his son-in-law Josiah Rayner of Southampton, Suffolk County, N. Y.; he had land at Frogs Point, Town of Westchester, Westchester County, N. Y. This shows the family had early left Jamaica, Queens County, N. Y., and had gone to the county where later lived our William Higbie.
2. Edward, born about 1652; married about 1690, Mary _____. He had at least four children who settled around what is now Northport, Long Island, N. Y.
3. Mary, born about 1655; married, _____, Edward Burroughs. Family is not yet fully traced.
4. John, born about 1658; married, May 1, 1679, Rebecca Tredwell. Her people settled on Long Island. John had four children and settled permanently in Middletown, Conn., in the vicinity of which his descendants are still to be found.
5. A daughter, born about 1661; married _____, Joseph Phillips; her name and children have not yet been learned but she is named in her father's will.
6. Lidia, born 1657 to 1663; married _____, Richard White of Huntington, L. I., N. Y., and her descendants are to be found in a pamphlet called "The Whites".

7. Samuel, born about 1666; married about 1690, Sarah Bunce; he remained at Jamaica, L. I., N. Y.; and died 1752, leaving no widow but five children, as is shown by his will.
8. NATHANIEL (1), born about 1668 to 1670. In book "B" (or 1) of Deeds at Jamaica, Queens County, N. Y., page 129, Edward Higbie of Jamaica, 7 May 1688, deeded sixty acres to his two sons, Nathaniel and Samuel. It is probable he was married not far from 1694.

 Note the one word "uringer" executrix on preceding page which I can not decipher & which makes no sense: but this is just as it appears in the book record & the original is not to be had.

There is no inventory here as is the case with many of the other estates.

2nd Gen. NATHANIEL HIGBIE (1) (son of Edward (1)) had at least five children, whose names have been recovered:

1. NATHANIEL (2), born 1696 to 1700. The White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y., Mortgagors show, liber A, page 142; Nathaniel Higbee, yeoman, of Cortlandt Manor, Westchester County, 6 Apr.
 1764, bought land for 150 pounds from Augustus Van Cortland, gentleman, of New York City: and it was evidently on this land that his son William lived for some time. The disposal of this land does not appear on record, (but this is no unusual thing, as the same can be said of other families).
2. William, born about 1701;
3. Patience, born about 1703;
4. Sarah, born about 1705;
5. Lydia, born about 1707.

3rd Gen.

NATHANIEL HIGBIE (3) (Nathaniel (2), Edward (1)) had at least two children and probably more:

1. Nathaniel, born about 1735; married, _____ 1760, Phebe Bennet. He left a will naming four children. His son Jacob was married in Westchester County, July 5, 1791, to Mary Lockwood or Lockard.
2. WILLIAM (4), born about 1737; died 1788; married first about 1760, _____, unknown; married second, about 1780, Abigail (Lane ?). Descendants of his son John, b. 1762, claim he had two wives and that a son William was born to the second wife and was much younger than John. The Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y., Surrogate records show, liber A, page 6, that administration of the estate of William Higby of Fredericksburg, Dutchess County, N. Y., now Kent, Putnam Co., 16 Jan. 1788, was granted to the widow Abigail: while the original papers in file box 14 show Abigail Higby of Fredericksburgh precinct, Dutchess County, N. Y., now Kent, Putnam County, N. Y., widow of William of the same place, farmer, gave a bond for 200 pounds with Devoe Bayley and Jonathan Austin of the same, farmers, on 15 Jan. 1788. He left no will; hence he died about 1788. Poughkeepsie deeds show liber 8 page William Higby of Fredericksburgh 18 Nov. 1782 buys for 64 pounds 128 acres of land exclusive of highways on the line of Cortlandt's Manor, Westchester County, N. Y., but situated in Fredericksburgh: southwest corner bounded by Joseph Gregory; north by Jeremiah Hughson: from S. Dodge, commissioner of forfeiture: the land formerly belonged to Roger Morris and his wife Mary (nee Phillips) who fled to Canada as tories White Plains deeds, liber H, page 434, show - William Higby, yeoman, of Westchester County (no town named) 22 Mch. 1773, buys for 103 pounds land in Cortlandt Manor from James Cock, sooper, of Westchester County: and again, liber H, page 432, William Higby (no place given) buys for 115 pounds land in Cortlandt Manor on the line of Dutchess County, 25 Jan. 1773 (recorded 23 Apr. 1773) from James De Lancey, sheriff of Westchester County, property (520 acres) formerly of Nathan Lane, merchant, now in the hands of his executors George and Mary Lane: The New York City Surrogate records show, liber 24, page 234, the will of Nathan Lane of Cortlandt: 15 Oct. 1763, proved 5 Nov. 1763; wife Mary; son Nathan not 21; son George farm in Phillips Precinct, Dutchess now Putnam County: "daughters at home" but no names are given; executors were wife and son George: Witnesses were John Hyatt, Samuel Haight, Joseph Lane. It would seem that the daughters must have been at this time single: the Lane Genealogy says that this Nathan had six daughters but it also fails to give any names: however, Abigail is a strong name with this Lane family.

4th Gen.

WILLIAM HIGBIE (4) (Nathaniel (3), Nathaniel (2), Edward (1)) had at least two children, one by each wife, and probably other children; but the records in the family of the descendants of his son John show only these two children:

1. John (also called Johannes), born April 1, 1762; married in Westchester County in 1787, to Phebe Hadden and moved back to Jamaica. His descendants claim he was born in Westchester or Dutchess County; had seven children.

2. WILLIAM (5), born _____ 1781, Fredericksburg, N. Y.; d. July 22, 1838; married _____, Abigail Peck, daughter of Abijah Peck, and Mindwell Close: Abijah Peck (son of John Peck of Milford and Sarah Adams), born April 3, 1758; died Nov. 12, 1848; was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, entering the Continental Army in January 1776. He was under arms when the Declaration of Independence was read to the American Army and one of the Sentinels when it evacuated the City of New York. He served in several campaigns and was in the battle of White Plains. After the war he resided in North Salem, N. Y., and there, Nov. 18, 1784, married Mindwell (daughter of Deacon Solomon Close, Jr.,) and shortly after removed to Galway, N. Y., where he resided until 1794, when he removed to Clifton Park, N. Y., where he resided until his death, Nov. 12, 1848. He was ordained minister of the Gospel, March 12, 1801, and preached in the Baptist church forty-seven years. He was a man of great influence and extensive usefulness both as a citizen and a Christian.

5th Gen. WILLIAM (5) (William (4), Nathaniel (3), Nathaniel (2), Edward (1)) and Abigail Peck had ten children:

1. Abigail, died in infancy;
2. Eliza, b. Sept. 4, 1805, at Duanesburg, N. Y.;
m. Dec. 28, 1828, at Penfield, N. Y., Willard Richards;
d. March 9, 1869, at Jonesville, Mich.
3. Nathan, b. Sept. 19, 1806, at Duanesburg, N. Y.;
m. (1) Gulielma Wing, at Duanesburg, N. Y., _____, 1831
(2) Mary Wheeler, at Armenia, N. Y., _____, 1845;
d. Feb. _____ 1884, at Fairport, N. Y.
4. Anne, b. March 18, 1808, at Duanesburg, N. Y.;
m. William Hoag, Penfield, N. Y., _____;
d. _____ at Jonesville, Mich.
5. Silas, b. Nov. 1, 1810, at Duanesburg, N. Y.;
m. Jan. 23, 1840, Hester Ross, Penfield, N. Y.;
d. Oct. 21, 1883, at Mumford, N. Y.
6. Twin Brother who died in infancy, and

The four brothers, NATHAN, SILAS, ABIJAH and ALANSON HIGBIE, came to Penfield with their father and family in 1835, and Abijah lived in the beautiful old homestead until his death, sixty years later. The others settled very near and all were men of influence and wealth, of strong Christian character, and all Baptists and worthy descendants of their ancestor Abijah Peck.

The three sisters lived in Penfield twenty years or more, then moved to Michigan and died there.

Mrs. Ida Higbie Forbes

Rochester, N. Y.

I have found in the records of John, born April 1, 1762, in Westchester County, that his brother, William b. 1781, had ten children. The names of the sons were given as Nathan, Silas, Abijah, and Alanson. You have the names of the daughters (Eliza, Anne and Mindwell). I found these in the administration and land purchases of William.

William, b. 1737, was 25 when John was born and 44 when William, 1781, was born, one year after his marriage to his wife, Abigail.

Abigail was the name of the first child of William, b. 1781 (died in infancy), next came the four sons named above---Abijah, your father, among them.

Yours truly,

William A. Eardeley,
Genealogist

WILLIAM HIGBIE

Removed from Duaneburg to Penfield, 1835

Died July 22nd, 1838, aged 57 yrs.

Friends no more my suffering mourn
Nor view my relics with concern
Because to drop the pitying tear
I've got beyond the reach of fear.

TESTIMONIAL TO NATHAN B. HIGBIE FROM HIS SWIFT AND COMPANY ASSOCIATES ON HIS RETIREMENT, DEC. 1st, 1928

Forty-three years of distinguished service with Swift & Company ended December first.

During those years, we, who have been privileged to be associated with you in almost daily contact, have learned to admire the ability, respect the integrity, and value the personality that are yours.

This testimonial from 90 of your oldest friends in Swift & Company is a token of the esteem in which you are held by them personally, as well as an expression of recognition of your services to the company.

Only time can test a man. Forty-three years have tested you, and we, your friends, can bear witness to the fact that you have stood the test well.

Our heartiest best wishes for your future health and happiness.
May you reap the full benefit of the rest which you have so richly earned.

AT THE FIRST MEETING OF KEOKUK CHAPTER OF THE DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION AFTER THE DEATH OF MRS. WILLIAM A. BROWNELL, THE FOLLOWING MEMORIAL WAS PRESENTED:

"In the passing of Mary Higbee Brownell, the Keokuk D. A. R. Chapter has lost one of its most beloved members. Her name was the first on a list of a group admitted after the formation of the chapter by the charter members, and her long membership was marked by unflinching loyalty and enthusiastic devotion in maintaining the traditions of the chapter.

"At one time Mrs. Brownell was elected regent, but owing to her absence from the city, and ill health, she did not serve. It has been truly said of her that she was a 'genius for making friends.' Her genuine interest in her host of friends was unflagging and her hospitable home was ever open to them. She was noted for her grace and charm as a hostess, and the many social functions held in her home will be cherished in the memory of all who knew her. The ancestor through whom she became eligible to membership in the D. A. R. was Abijah Peck. After serving honorably in the Revolutionary War, he became a minister of the gospel at Clifton Park, N. Y., where he preached forty-seven years. This regard for the serious, enduring things of life was strongly manifested in Mrs. Brownell's life and activities.

"She was deeply interested in the affairs of her church and the philanthropic enterprises of the community. When heartbreaking sorrows invaded her home she bore them with heroic christian fortitude.

"The religious aspect with her social gifts combined to form an ideal character, a real gentlewoman, of whose memory the Keokuk chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution may feel justly proud.

"To her splendid sons, whose loving care and attention comforted and sustained her declining years, this chapter extends its sincerest sympathy."

WILLIAM HENRY HIGBIE, son of Abijah and Sarah Ross Higbie, m. Dec. 6, 1865, Rosella, daughter of Hiram and Alida Adair Snow of Syracuse, N. Y. He was a member of the firm of Reese, Higbie & Haskins, druggists, of Rochester, N. Y. He was generous, lovable and a general favorite with all who knew him. He died Sept. 12, 1878, but five of his grandsons enlisted in the World War: Harold, Earl and Cyril Schutt, sons of Clara Higbie and Charles Edgar Schutt of Penfield; and Donald and Duncan Harris, sons of Hattie Higbie and George H. Harris of Rochester, N. Y.

HAROLD HIGBIE SCHUTT enlisted in May, 1917, when he was twenty-two years of age;

Was in Officers' Training Camp at Watertown during the summer and afterwards sent to Fort Niagara, where he was appointed 2nd Lieutenant of Infantry, 27th of November, 1917;

Was sent to San Antonio, Texas, and during the winter was sent to Aviation Training School at St. Paul, Minnesota, where he remained until he received discharge in May, 1919.

EARL WESLEY SCHUTT enlisted as a private in U. S. Marine Corps at M. B. Port Royal, the 21st of May, 1917, when nearly twenty-one.

He was later sent to camp at Quantico, Va., where he qualified as sharp-shooter.

He was sent overseas on the U. S. S. Henderson, Jan. 20, and there remained until, in 80th Co., 4th Brigade, U. S. Marines.

He saw active service in Verdun sector, March 18 - May 12, 1918; Chateau Thierry sector, June 1 - 3, when he was wounded in the left hand by shrapnel; in St. Mihiel sector, Sept. 12 - 15, 1918, when he was shot through both hips by machine gun bullets.

Was sent into Army of Occupation, Coblenz, Germany, Dec. 13, 1918 to July 4, 1919.

Returned on U. S. S. George Washington, July 25, 1919, and was discharged, August 15, 1919.

CYRIL HIGBIE SCHUTT enlisted in Motor Transport Corps, October 31, 1918 1918, and was discharged, November 28, 1918.

DUNCAN HIGBIE HARRIS enlisted in the Regular United States Army at Rochester, N. Y., on his sixteenth birthday, May 14, 1917

Was sent to 16th U. S. Cavalry which was stationed at Mercedes on the Rio Grande, Texas. Later in November he was transferred to Mounted Police which formed in Camp Forest, Ga., and March 16, 1918, sailed for France on the Carpathia. After a few months service in England, where he landed, he was transferred to the 7th U. S. Infantry, Co. B.; later saw service as follows:

Chateau Thierry, June 5 - 29, 1918;
Champaigne Marne, July 10 - 18, 1918;
Aisne Marne, July 18 - 29, 1918;
St. Mihiel, September 12 - 16, 1918;
Meuse Argonne, Sept. 25 - Oct. 29, 1918.

After the armistice was signed he was sent to the Army of Occupation on the Rhine, and on August 10, 1919, "started for God's country," sailing on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria; he landed at Camp Merritt and was discharged at Camp Dix, August 27, 1919.

TAKEN FROM LETTER FROM DONALD
WRITTEN AFTER THE ARMISTICE

2nd Lt. Donald Harris of Rochester, N. Y., enlisted in the Regular Army for the duration of the war. He was in camp at El Paso, Texas, and sailed for France with the 5th Field Artillery, July 29, 1917, on the ship Tenaderas. The Sector to which they went was that of the Rhine Marne Canal in the vicinity of Einville, the P. C. being there. He was there for fifteen days, eight of which his battery was digging a position three kil. back of the lines and seven days in a position back of hill 273, a kil. back of the lines. While the Battery was digging, he and his chum were in an advanced listening post studying sound ranging. While on this job they were shelled twice very heavily and had one close shave: some shell splinters falling much too near for comfort. When the Battery went into position he and his chum had much to do with the communications. They were heavily shelled every day but fortunately no one was hit. The second day they were in working order the sector showed signs of life and that evening the Boche put over the first trench raid on the Americans and caught the second Battalion of the 18th Infantry right after it had relieved the first Battalion; they engaged in the counter barrage. Their Battalion was ordered to the Luneville sector to destroy a German steel observing post that had appeared in the sector. They went into position behind the woods of Parroy, accomplished their mission and pulled out two hours later. They had no more than left when the German shrapnel began to burst over their deserted positions. They returned to Luneville and were next ordered to Mandres. Then came an overland hike of six days which will never be forgotten: full pack, and it poured every day. After a week's rest and three weeks of drill he was recommended by Lt. Huhberg, his Battery Co., to go to the First Candidate School at Saumur for a commission. The recommend O. K. by Major Murray, then Battalion Co. and the Col. of their regiment. He was at the Field Artillery School of Instruction from Dec. 1 to March 15 - 74 of the original 104 getting commissions, and out of that number he ranked 44th. He was made Sergeant instructor and received his commission May 21, and took command of Supply Co. in the Regiment during the absence of the C. O. He was next chosen because of experience, to buy horses for the American government. In the following six weeks more than five hundred animals passed through his hands. On completion of work he was returned to his Regiment and told to report to the Co. General, 1st Army Corps at Fere au Tardnois and was there during the Chateau Thierry party. From there he was sent to 1st Corps Replacement Bu. for assignment to a Division. They made a quick move to Haron to be in the St. Mihiel party. During this offensive he had charge of the warehouses which fully equipped thirty-five hundred a week. Next a letter came asking for an officer who understood Infantry ammunition to be sent to the 1st Corps right away, and the Major chose him. He was sent to Rarscort during the Argonne fight and assigned to the Munitions office as assistant and in charge of supplying the Infantry Divisions with ammunitions - and was there when peace was declared.

REPORT FROM THE COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The Commission of the General Land Office was organized on January 1, 1907, and since that time has been engaged in a study of the land problem in the United States. The Commission has held numerous public hearings and has received many suggestions from the public. It has also conducted extensive research into the various aspects of the land problem, including the ownership of land, the use of land, and the distribution of land. The Commission has found that the land problem is a complex one, involving many different interests and factors. It has also found that the Government has a significant role to play in the solution of the land problem. The Commission has therefore recommended a number of measures to be taken by the Government to deal with the land problem. These measures include the acquisition of land for public use, the regulation of the use of land, and the distribution of land to the people. The Commission believes that these measures are essential for the solution of the land problem and for the benefit of the Nation.

RUNDEL GENEALOGY

(A copy of extract from letter written to Mrs. Charles A. Clark, Fairport, New York, by William A. Eardeley, Brooklyn, New York.)

This name is variously spelled on old records as Rundall, Rundle, Rundell, and even as Randall. They are all the same family as can be easily proven from existing records. Jeremiah (3) Rundel moved from Greenwich, Connecticut, to New Milford, Connecticut, and changed his name to Randall: his son Jeremial (4) had a son Jonathan (5) who moved to Harlem, now in the City of New York, and purchased before the Revolution what is still known as Randall's Island in the East River: his grandchildren sold this island to the City of New York and there is now a City Institution there.

1. William (1) Rundall Sr. (or Rundel) of Greenwich, Connecticut, was born about 1650: where is not yet known, but probably in England: he died in 1714 about November in Greenwich, Connecticut: he married about 1673 Abigail Tyler: they had fourteen children, as named in his will. The Probate Records in the town of Fairfield, Connecticut, have the will of William Rundall Sr. of Greenwich, Connecticut, dated October 22, 1714: proved November 26, 1714: names his wife Abigail: children John, the eldest, Sarah Knap, Mary "finch", Abigail "finch": grandson John Downs: children Samuel, Patience, William, Abram, Hannah, Elizabeth, Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph: this brief abstract is all I have: I copied it from the original there at Fairfield, when I did not appreciate the value of the names of executors and witnesses: my copy lacks those items. You could procure a copy of the entire will by writing to the Probate Judge, Fairfield, Connecticut.

- William (1) and Abigail () Rundall had fourteen children
2. - 1. John (2) born about 1675: married : Miss Amy Knapp: they had at least five children.
3. - 2. Sarah (2) born about 1677: married April 1, 1697 Calob Knapp: they had eight children.
4. - 3. Mary (2) born about 1679: married April 27, 1704 Isaac Finch: they had at least one child.
5. - 4. Abigail (2) born about 1681: married about 1700 Joseph Finch: no more known: but thought to have had seven children.
6. - 5. A daughter born about 1683: name not known: married (John?) Downs: had at least one son John (3) Downs.
7. - 6. Samuel (2) born about 1685: married March 1, 1715 Hannah Hardy: they had nine children.
8. - 7. Patience (2) born about 1687: no more known.
9. - 8. William (2) born about 1689: Married April 12, 1722 Sarah Knap: they had five children.
10. - 9. Abram (2) or Abraham (2) born about 1691: married March 31, 1725 Rebecca Mead: they had six children.
11. -10. Hannah (2) born about 1693: said to have married a Samuel Brown of Rye, New York, and had a number of children.
12. -11. Elizabeth (2) born about 1695: no more trace of her.
13. -12. Isaac (2) born about 1697: married Hannah her name is said to have been Close but this is not proven: no more known.
14. -13. Jacob (2) born about 1699: married April 1, 1727-1728 Rebecca Knap: they had at least two children.
15. -14. Joseph (2) born about 1701: married April 15, 1729 Mindwell Ferris: These are your ancestors.

RUNDEL GENEALOGY

It is a matter of great regret that there is not one birth of all these fourteen children on the Town or Church records of Greenwich, Connecticut. The death of the first William Rundel and his wife is not on record there. The above will is sufficient proof that this family existed but the birth dates are guesses and are probably very near correct. There are many deeds on record at Greenwich, Connecticut of the first William Rundel and of all his sons, where they buy and sell property. If you should get a copy complete of the will of this William (1) Rundall (this is how his name is there spelled), I will be glad to have a copy to include in my records before they are printed.

15. Joseph (2) Rundel (William (1)): born about 1701: Greenwich, Connecticut: died about 1774 or 1775 in New Fairfield, Conn.: married first in Greenwich, Connecticut, April 15, 1729, by Justice Mead, to Mindwell Ferris: see the book at Greenwich called Births & Marriages & Deaths, on Page 21, where his first four children are also recorded: married second Experience. It is probable he moved to New Fairfield, Connecticut, about 1736. The Probate records at Danbury, Connecticut, Volume 3, page 240, have the will of Joseph Rundle of New Fairfield, Connecticut, dated August 29, 1774: proved March 21, 1775: names his wife Experience, sons Joseph and William and John: daughters Rhoda, Mindwell, and Elizabeth, and the heirs of Leah: the executors were his sons Joseph and William: the witnesses were Samuel Trowbridge and Anne Trowbridge and Bille Trowbridge. I have only this abstract of this will.

Joseph (2) Rundel had eight children---

82. - 1. Joseph (3) born Greenwich, Connecticut, June 9, 1730: he is your ancestor: the name of his wife has not yet been learned.
83. - 2. Mindwell (3) born Greenwich, February 6, 1731: married July 8, 1756 John Hitchcock: they had two children.
84. - 3. Elizabeth (3) born Greenwich, October 4, 1733: no more known.
85. - 4. Abigail (3) born Greenwich, May 23, 1735: probably died young, as she is not named in her father's will.
86. - 5. William (3) born not found: no more trace.
87. - 6. John (3) born: not found: no more trace.
88. - 7. Rhoda (3) born: not found: no more trace.
89. - 8. Leah (3) born: not found: no more trace.

By a reference to any map, you will find New Fairfield, Connecticut, is in the North West corner of Fairfield County, Connecticut, about 10 miles from Danbury, Connecticut. My Chase and Perry and Holmes ancestors lived in New Fairfield and Danbury, - hence my interest. The town records of New Fairfield were all destroyed by fire shortly after our Civil War and hence no new material can be had there: and the Church records began about 1750, so the dates on the above last four children just escape those records. It is possible some one may have a family Bible on the above Family: but who or where, I can not suggest. I have found so many old Bibles on other families, that I would not be surprised if one on this family turned up some day. I would advise you to get a copy complete of the above wills of William (1) Rundall and Joseph (2) Rundel (this is how his name is there spelled). I wish I had a copy of each to send you now. It would be just as cheap for me to go to each place and made a copy, as it would be to write there as they would charge you for a copy the same as a trip would cost. I have copied hundreds of old wills and am more familiar with the old hand writing than the majority of the stenographers who are hired to do such work. They make many mistakes.

82. Joseph (3) Rundel (Joseph (2), William): born Greenwich, Connecticut, June 9, 1730: death not found: there may be a will of his in Danbury, Connecticut, as I did not have time to exhaust all their records when I was there. The name of his wife is not known as yet. The birth and baptismal dates of the first four children are from the records of the Congregational Church, in New Fairfield, Connecticut, the father in each case given as Joseph, but the mother's name does not appear there at all. The dates on Mary and David I have from you.

Joseph (3) Rundel had nine children.

1. Ruhamah (4) born _____: baptized April 3, 175 : married Mr. _____ Harvey.
2. John (4) born _____: baptized May 21, 1750. no more trace.
3. EZRA (4) born March 11, 1760: baptized March 16, 1760: married April 25, 1782 Elizabeth Knapp: you have all his family who are in the fifth generation.
4. Ferris (4) born July 31, 1762: baptized October 17, 1762: married _____: the name of his wife has not yet been found.
5. William (4) born _____ 1764: died August 14, 1833: no more trace.
6. Mary (4) born December 23, 1767: died May 26, 1812: married January 25, 1796 Elijah Smith: her children you have: Can you get me a record of all of her grand-children?
7. Joseph (4) born about 1769: no more trace.
8. Isaac (4) born about 1771: the name of his wife not yet found: you have his children.
9. David (4) born May 23, 1773: died June 19, 1833: married August 23, 1796 Sabra (Magat?): should this name be Mygatt? You have his children.

The rest of the Rundel records of your family come to me from you. I have a lot more of Rundel data but it is not on your own immediate family line.

CRANDALL FAMILY OF RHODE ISLAND

JOHN CRANDALL, Sr. born in England; died at Newport, Rhode Island in 1676; came to Boston in 1634. He was a Colonist pioneer; the first Baptist Elder at Westerly, Rhode Island; Deputy Commissioner and Statesman of Newport and Westerly, Rhode Island.

He came to New England a few years after the landing of the Pilgrims, being in Providence as early as 1637. He was associated with such men as Roger Williams and Dr. John Clark, who obtained that liberal Charter from the King that gave the planters in New England real religious liberty.

History records that John Crandall with Dr. John Clark and Obediah Holmes, being the representative of the Newport Church visited William Witter of Lynn, Massachusetts and Dr. Clark preached in Mr. Witter's house.

The Reverend John Crandall was twice married. He married second Hannah Gaylord. By the first wife he had seven children and by the second, two children. Sarah, the fourth child, married Josiah Witter, son of the Reverend William Witter.

From History of the Genesee Valley

William Ross, of Rhode Island, married Hannah Hungerford, daughter of Thos. Hungerford and Hannah Willey, of East Haddam, died in 1712. Isaac Willey came from New London, Conn., with Thos. Hungerford and settled in Hadlyme. They owned land from the Connecticut River, extending back several miles along the line of the town of Lyme. On the road leading from New London to the Nahantio bar is a large single rock of granite, that was known as "Hungerford's Fort" and is mentioned in the proprietary records. (From a small book called "The Old Chimney Stacks of East Haddam, pages 55-59.) His great, great grandson, Lebbeus, born 1761, at Westerly, R. I., married, 1783, at Westerly, R. I., Rhoda Crandall, whose grandfather and great grandfather were Justices in Westerly, R. I. (Westerly records, pages 9-24.) Removed to Penfield, N. Y., in 1800, with his son, Abijah Ross, born Aug. 4, 1790, at Sheffield, Mass.; married Ruhama Rundel, born March 15, 1799, daughter of Ezra Rundel, born New Fairfield, Conn., March 11, 1760. Married, April 25, 1782, Elizabeth Knapp; moved to Penfield, N. Y., in 1808. Sarah Ross married Abijah Higbie, October 4, 1841. Ida Higbie, daughter of Abijah, married, June 25, 1879, Dr. John Franklin Forbes.

A memory never to be forgotten is of the grandmother and her sister, Betsy Ross, always attired in crisp black silk or satin with spotless white "Kerchiefs or lace crossed upon the waist with caps to match. These dresses were made by themselves, up to the last ones, worn at their burial. They were most efficient, not only in housekeeping, spinning and weaving, but did marvelous embroidery and were most artistic in tastes and their houses were the attractive centers for social gatherings. Interested in topics of the day--deeply religious--all contributed to form an ideal character--real gentlewomen. These traits were passed on to their daughters."

Mrs. Forbes' mother was equally efficient--of delicate sensitive organism, most unselfish, caring for the sick and helpless, beloved by all who knew her. Deeply interested in church work, the family were always found in their pew unless illness or snow-filled roads in winter prevented.

William Hall, of Rhode Island, married Susan Huntington, daughter of John Huntington and Susan Hall, of New London, in 1772. Susan died some time from London, Conn., with three children, and resided in Andover, Mass. Her husband died from the Connecticut River, extending about several miles along the line of the town of Andover. In the road leading from the town to the river there is a large stone house of worship, and was known as "Huntington's Church" and is mentioned in the property records. (From a small book called "The Old Country Books of East Andover, pages 14-15.) His first great-grandson, Isaac, born 1781, at Westbury, N. Y., married, 1799, at Westbury, N. Y. Rhode Island, where (transferred) and great-grandchildren were located in Andover, N. Y. (Westbury records, pages 14-15.) Remained in Westbury, N. Y., in 1800, with his son, Nathan Hall, born Aug. 2, 1799, at Westbury, Mass.; married Susan Hall, born March 11, 1799, daughter of John Hall, born New Fairfield, Conn. March 11, 1790, married, April 12, 1808, Elizabeth Hall, moved to Fairfield, N. Y., in 1808. Their son, Nathan Hall, born October 4, 1811, N. Y. daughter of Nathan Hall, married, June 27, 1839, to John Franklin Foster. A story given to me by Nathan of the grandmothers and her sister, Mary Hall, always called in their black line on their white "Huntington" as Isaac traced upon the point with regard to which. Their daughter was made up themselves up to the last ones, worn as their duties. They were good artists, and only in housekeeping, spinning and weaving, but did not have any industry and were good artists in their own right and their houses were the most comfortable for social entertainers. Interested in certain of the day-to-day collection--well acquainted to look on their own--well acquainted. Their duties were passed on to their daughter.

Mr. Foster, when very young, attended the school of his father and sister, and was very much interested in their work. The family were always very much interested in their work, and the family were always very much interested in their work.

Isaac Hall, of New-London, was in Andover, Mass.

HUNGERFORD - HIGBIE - ROSS

(Copied from a small book called -

"THE OLD CHIMNEY STACKS OF EAST HADDAM," by Hosford B. Niles. 1887.)

"Chapter X. Hadlyme.
Hungerford and Willey Families." pp. 55-59

"The Society of Hadlyme was formed from East Haddam Society and Lyme Third Society, in October 1742. About two-thirds of the Society is in East Haddam. The meeting house was erected soon after. The church was organized with ten male members on the 20th of June, 1745, at the house of Lieut. John Comstock, and on the 18th of September following the Rev. Grindal Rawson was installed its pastor."

"Thomas Hungerford moved to this parish from New London, with his three sons as early as 1692. He was soon followed by Isaac Willey and his three sons, also from New London. The Hungerfords, Willeys and Holmes seem to have taken firm root in the soil, as their descendants are now quite numerous here and "own and possess" a large portion of the land."

"Thomas Hungerford was a blacksmith, and in consideration of his trade the society of East Haddam gave him a section of land. His house stood at the corner of the road east of Asa Hungerford's near the Old Bone Hill."

"He died about 1714, and was buried in the Cove Burying Ground. The three sons who accompanied him hither were named Thomas, John and Green. At that time Thomas 2nd was married and had one child. Later he was a sea-faring man, and when at home lived with and took care of his father. On his return from his last voyage at sea, he was taken sick at New London, where he died in 1750. His descendants left town."

"John, the second son of the elder Thomas, married Deborah Spencer about 1701. He died in 1748 and was buried in Hadlyme burying ground; had two sons, Robert and Thomas."

"Green Hungerford, son of the elder Thomas, moved to Killington about 1730, where he became one of the leading men of the society. He married Jemima Richardson. He had a son Green who occupied the old homestead, which subsequently became used as a public house, and the headquarters of the militia for a number of years." (Page 60)

ISAAC WILLEY (p. 60)

"Isaac Willey came from New London with Thomas Hungerford, and settled in Hadlyme with his three sons, Isaac, John and Abel. They owned land from the Connecticut River, extending back several miles along the line of the town of Lyme."

"Before the end of the municipal year, Feb. 25, 1650-1, we find the name of Thomas Hungerford as an applicant for a house lot. It was on the Bank, next above Stanton's."

"His name is on a full list of the actual inhabitants, July, 1651."
(p. 75)

"Thomas Hungerford died 1663.
Estate 100 pounds. Children three: Thomas, aged about fifteen; Sarah, nine; Hannah, four years old, the first of May, 1663."

"The relict of Thomas Hungerford married Samuel Spencer of East Haddam. One of the daughters married Lewis Hughes of Lyme."

On the road leading from New London to the Nahantick bar, (Rope Ferry) nearly in the parallel of Bruen's Neck, is a large single rock of granite, that in former times was known as Hungerford's Fort. It is also mentioned on the proprietary records in describing the pathway to Bruen's Neck, as "the great rock called Hungerford's Fort."

Thomas Hungerford 2nd had a grant of land in 1673 four miles from town, "and his name occurs, as an inhabitant, for ten or twelve years, though he was afterward of Lyme." (Page 281)

The four brothers NATHAN, SILAS, ABIJAH and ALANSON HIGBIE came to Penfield with their father and family in 1835, and ABIJAH lived in the beautiful old homestead until his death, sixty years later. The others settled very near and all were men of influence and wealth, of strong Christian character, and all Baptists and worthy descendants of their ancestor ABIJAH PECK.

BROTHERS OF WILLIAM PECK

JOSEPH and ROBERT PECK, brothers of WILLIAM PECK, came over in the "Diligent," arrived in Boston, August 10, 1638, from Ipswich in Suffolk, England.

JOSEPH with his wife and three children, two men and three maid servants. "Freeman", March 13, 1639; Representative, 1639, 1642 and 1645 to Rehoboth; there died, December 22, 1663. Probably he had lived at Hingham in Norfolk, for his brother Robert was minister in that pleasant town many years.

ROBERT PECK was bred at Magdalen College where he had his degree of A. B. and A. M., the latter in 1603; was a minister over 30 years at Hingham in Norfolk, yet was harassed for nonconforming to some of the ceremonies by Bishop Harsnet, his diocesan, whose imprudence in honor of the church was so great as to excite complaint from the people of Norwich in 1623, in House of Commons in Parliament. Two successors in that section were milder, White and Corbet, but when Wren, that bird of ill omen, came to the Cathedral, no puritan could long serve at the altar. Mather Peck gains delight of telling how his Peck was put under a bushel.

Robert Peck died in 1656.

PIONEERS OF MONROE COUNTY, NEW YORK

THE HIGBIE, ROSS AND RUNDEL FAMILIES

By Ida Higbie Forbes

"Since the Pilgrims landed, they and their descendants had been surrounded by the lure of mysteries, the love of adventure, the desire to explore, the dream of fruitful sunny lands strewn with gold, these were the only heritage of their sons and daughters, save the strength and courage of the pioneer. America has undervalued the brave souls who went west in wagons, without whose sublime courage and endurance, the plains would still be an unplowed wilderness. They were its best blood of the world and the noblest of God's missionaries. Who does not honor them above the thrifty, above the comfort-loving men and women who staid at home, where risks were few, the supply of food sure and the consolations of friendship and religion always at hand. They preferred to take their places in the front battle line of civilization."

Irving Bacheller

LEBBEUS ROSS was born March 29, 1761, in Westerly, R. I., son of Peleg Ross and Hannah Lewis; married, March 23, 1783, by Joseph Crandall, Justice, Rhoda Crandall, daughter of Captain William and Deborah Crandall. Removed to Penfield in 1800 with their nine children.

EZRA RUNDEL, son of Joseph, was born at New Fairfield, Conn., March 11, 1760; married Elizabeth Knapp, April 25, 1782. Settled in Penfield in 1808 with their ten children.

WILLIAM HIGBIE was born in 1781; married Abigail Peck, daughter of Abijah Peck and Mindwell Close. They removed to Penfield from Duanesburg, N. Y., in 1835 with their eight children.

From History of New York State, published in 1861, by J. N. French, L.L.D.

"The first settlers in Penfield were:
Calvin Clark in 1800
Lebbeus Ross in 1800."

These families intermarried and formed a large part of the inhabitants of Penfield from 1800 to 1900.

Betsy Rundel married William Crandall Ross;
Ruhama Rundel married Abijah Ross; their daughter
Sarah Ross married Abijah Higbie;
Hester Ross married Silas Higbie;
Myron Rundel's daughter, Lucy, married Alanson Higbie.

Minerva Rundel married Chester Clark:
Children: Henry, Frank, and Laura.

Calvin Rundel married Emmeline Cook:
Children: Pamelia, Sarah, and Gerome, of Fairport.

Emmeline married _____ Smith, of Denver, and left a large fortune.

Children of William Ross (brother of Abijah Ross) and Betsy Rundel, m. Dec. 27, 1810

Eleanor married Giles Rich, son of Samuel Rich. Samuel Rich built the large flouring mill at Penfield. He also had a general store and sold cultivators and threshing machines. He built the fine old homestead still standing and occupied by Charles Raymond. Giles Rich built the flouring mill still standing in Rich's dugway. He also had a large saw mill and drew much lumber to build Rochester, then a small town. In 1863 he went west to make a fortune, as so many did at that time, and he succeeded; returning to Rochester he invested his money in real estate and his heirs in Rochester are still in possession of valuable lands and buildings.

Emily and Eliza married Johnathan Wood, who had one of the largest and most productive farms in Irondequoit. Fine buildings still standing.

Elnora married Benjamin Huntington, who had a flouring mill and large saw mill on Allen's Creek, just west of Maplewood on East Avenue. The commodious home buildings were only recently torn down to make way for modern residences. They removed to the fine homestead on East Avenue, since occupied by the Luetchfords and Knowltons.

Oliver married Betsy Shearman and built a beautiful house on his farm on the road to Rochester via Rich's Mill. In 1890 the lure of the west still possessed men and he and his brother, Andrew, removed to Spokane, Washington, and invested in real estate. They left large fortunes.

Harriet married Oliver Sutton and removed to a beautiful farm just out of Lyons, N. Y.

Laura married Jirah Moseley, who started and remained until his death in the firm of Moseley & Motley, the largest flouring mills in Rochester.

It is an interesting coincidence that three of the daughters married millers and that the others had ideal farms and homes.

PELEG ROSS, brother of William and Abijah Ross, b. _____; d. in 1820, aged 33 years; married three times: (1) Deborah, d. 1813, aged 23; (2) Sally R., d. 1815, aged 29; (3) Sally, d. 1823, aged 39. He was buried in his father's lot in Penfield. Engraved on the tombstone erected by his last wife, who survived him, is the epitaph:

"Here lies my husband dear.
We lived in love almost five year
And then the Lord He thought it best
To take him to his Heavenly rest."

He had five children: Clark, Hiram, Oliver, Orin, and Festus.

MARY ROSS married Peter Shoecraft. Their daughter, Hannah, married Dean Shuart, who for many years was Surrogate of Monroe County; and their daughter, Helen Shoecraft Millar, was associated in business with Dean Shuart.

LEBBEUS ROSS, brother of Abijah, married Faircha, Honor and Mary. Children: Martin; Austin; Sally Ann m. Eaton; Aurilla m. Leake.

DEBORAH ROSS married Noble Moore. Lebbeus Moore married Northrop; Rhoda Moore married John Crippen.

RHODA ROSS married Alpheus Clark, a veteran of the Revolutionary War. Alpheus Clark, Jr., married Mindwell Higbie, sister of Nathan, Silas, Abijah and Alanson Higbie.

ABIJAH ROSS, brother of William, married Ruhama Rundel. Children: Horace married Emily Benedict; Hester married Silas Higbie; Sarah married Abijah Higbie, who was seventeen years of age when he came to Penfield with his parents in 1835 and who lived in the fine old homestead until his death sixty years later.

The Baptist Church at Penfield was largely made up of these cousins who lived on adjoining farms all about Penfield. Nathan Higbie lived farthest away--at East Penfield.

On what is called "The Five Mile Line" running north from Penfield to Webster, at the southern extremity, lived Samuel Rich. In the village, Peter Shoecraft built the finest wayside inn between Rochester and Lyons; next came the home of Alpheus Clark; that of John Crippen; Abijah Ross' second farm, given to Sarah Ross Higbie; across the corner the home of Alanson Higbie; to the north, adjoining Alanson Higbie, the Abijah Higbie farm and original Higbie homestead; thence north, the Calvin Rundel homestead; the Abner Schutt farm, now owned by son Edward, who married Clara Higbie; and next Aurilla Ross Leake, who married Thomas Leake.

Starting west from the Alanson Higbie corner: Silas Higbie home; Lebbeus Ross homestead, afterwards the home of Abijah Ross; the William Ross farm; Oliver Ross farm and fine buildings--after his removal west this was purchased by George Clark, another cousin, who had a farm adjoining on the south-east. Continuing west on the road to Rochester, we come to the Rich Mill and dugway, described above.

The Lebbeus Ross farm, north of Oliver Ross farm, was purchased by Rollin Warner, who married Emma, daughter of Abijah Higbie. Going east from the Alanson Higbie farm we have the Rhoda Ross Crippen farm, the Chester Clark, Frank Clark and Northrop farms. Silas and Hester Higbie sold their farm and spent the last years of their lives with their daughter, Martha, who married Chester Brown of Mumford. His great-grandfather, Solomon Brown, was the first pastor of the Wheatland Baptist Church (sometimes called the Belcoda Church) and one of the first, if not the first Baptist minister in the United States to settle as pastor west of the Genesee River. He was in the war of the American Revolution and his son, Theron Brown (father of Chester) was Brigadier General of the New York State Militia. The Brown and Harmon families owned five thousand acres of the most fertile land in the town of Wheatland. Chester and Charles inherited and cultivated six hundred of the original five thousand acres. This beautiful farm and all the above mentioned farms in Penfield have passed into the hands of foreigners, the buildings neglected and unappreciated, while the noble pioneers--men and women, whose children rise up to call them blessed--sleep in the beautiful little cemetery at Penfield. It is doubtful if another cemetery can be found in this country where four and five generations, so closely related by inter-marriage, lie side by side.

Many of their descendants had the same "desire to explore the dream of fruitful, sunny lands to the westward." The first to go were the two daughters of William Higbie (b. 1781):

Eliza Higbie married, Dec. 28, 1828, Willard or "Squire" Richards, as he was called. He was a successful school teacher and later a Justice.

In 1855 they removed to Jonesville, Michigan, with two children: Nathan G., and Caroline, who married George W. Proper, April 5, 1859. Willard Richards held many responsible township and county offices. He divided his time between farming and stock buying and was remarkably successful. He was considered the wealthiest man in Jonesville and had one of the finest farm homes there. "Socially, no farmer in southern Michigan had a wider acquaintance or stood higher as a reliable citizen." He was a 33rd degree Mason.

Ann Higbie and William Hoag journeyed to Michigan with them, settling in Hudson, Michigan. She was left a widow at middle age with three children: William, Walter and Elizabeth. The elder son, William, was a very successful farmer, living one mile east of Jonesville. The neighbors said, of all those people they were the finest Christian characters and "good to every one." Walter Hoag was in the Civil War and married a southern nurse. Elizabeth married Dr. Parker Hale, a well known and successful physician, of Chicago.

Four of Nathan Higbie's children made their homes in the West:

Lucia married at Penfield, N. Y., Nov. 24, 1852, Elias Hicks Durfee. Removed to Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1864, where he was president of a line of steamboats on the Mississippi River, dealing in government supplies for the northwestern territories.

Helen married, 1856, Campbell Kennedy Peck, of Troy, N. Y., who was connected with Hicks Durfee in the transport line of steamboats.

David married Orissa Kellogg, of Penfield, and removed to Chicago in 1872 with two sons: Nathan, who has been General Purchasing Agent for Swift & Co. since 1885; and Frederick, who is President of the American Meat Packers' Supply Co.

Gerome left a fortune made in Denver and western gold mines.

Two of Silas Higbie's daughters married and lived in the west:

Mary married, Feb. 13, 1861, William A. Brownell, banker, of Keokuk, Iowa; died June 23, 1920.

Emily married, June 14, 1871, Edwin Brownell, banker, of Keokuk, Iowa; died April 26, 1874.

Of Abijah Higbie's children, one journeyed westward to reside and one to Florida:

Horace Abijah, of the firm of Williamson & Higbie - publishers of law books and conducting a book store in Rochester, N. Y., from 1874 to 1889 - removed to Spokane, Washington, in 1889, but returned to New York state in 1901 and resided in Wellsville, dealing in bonds and stocks until his death in 1912. A friend wrote of him: "He was lovable by nature, gentle, brave, thoughtful of others, and had a character peculiarly straightforward, simple and noble. I do not think that an essentially Christian spirit was ever more fully or more beautifully exemplified than in him. I shall never forget or fail to be impressed by his splendid example."

In 1926 Dr. S. J. Earley and Fayette Rockwell, sons-in-law of Horace, removed to Brownsville, Texas, and purchased lands, setting out grapefruit and orange groves. Dr. Olin Jones, also a son-in-law of Horace, purchased lands, expecting to make his home there later.

Dr. S. J. Earley, a man of high character and earnest spirit, during his residence in Olean and Brownsville, was active in educational and civic affairs. He was President of the Board of Education and of the Chamber of Commerce. He was greatly beloved and a beautiful avenue in Brownsville was named in his honor after his death, Feb. 3, 1933.

Ida married, June 25, 1879, Professor John Franklin Forbes, Department of Greek, State Normal School, Brockport, N. Y., 1878-1885; President of John B. Stetson University, DeLand, Florida, 1885-1903; Department of Psychology and Ethics, Rochester University, in place of his brother during leave of absence, 1904-1905; Department of Psychology, Pedagogy and Ethics and President of Rochester Business Institute, 1906 until his death in 1926. John Franklin Forbes and his twin brother, George Mather Forbes, at the close of their freshman year, at the University of Rochester, which they entered in 1871, went abroad to study at Leipsic and Berlin and travelled extensively in England, France, Germany, Austria and Italy; spending considerable time in Rome and Paris after their year in Leipsic and Berlin. Upon their return to America they again taught and by reason of their studies abroad they were able to pass examinations for the Sophomore year, and in 1877 and 1878 took the Junior and Senior years at Rochester University, graduating in the Class of 1878. They were awarded the Phi Beta Kappa key; his brother and he having the highest standing in the class. They also secured the Davis prize for the best original orations delivered at commencement and secured the Sherman and Townsend Fellowships, treatises on Economics and Political Science and books published in the French and German languages; his brother securing the Townsend and he the Sherman.

Alanson Higbie was Supervisor of the Town of Penfield, Justice of the Peace, and held various places of trust for years.

His son, Frank, married, October 2, 1877, Nellie, daughter of Albert and Dorinda Hawley King, of Chili, N. Y., and to them came the beautiful old homestead. She died in 1894 and in 1908 he married May Raub, daughter of M. G. and Irene Raub, of Bradford, Pa. He was also engaged in the coal and produce business at Chili until his death in January.

George married, March 14, 1877, Sarah, daughter of Dr. Thomas and Emily Ayers Brown of Penfield, N. Y. They lived for years on the home farm after Alanson and wife retired to Fairport, N. Y., next door to Nathan Higbie and family. In 1890, George and his son, Charles, under the firm name of George K. Higbie & Co., Seedsmen, established a well known and prosperous business in Rochester, N. Y.

Alanson's grandson, Donald, son of Carrie Higbie Parce, hears the call of the west, marries, Nov. 2, 1919, Elizabeth Howe, daughter of Lewis and Mattie Howe of Oakland, California, and becomes a prosperous business man of Denver, Colorado.

The children and grandchildren of these noble "Pioneers of Penfield and Rochester" are men and women of sterling character, worthy descendants of the old New England stock.

I cannot close without relating the oft told tale of the journey to Rochester by wagon, of William Higbie and his family:

In my childhood I often heard father tell of this journey when he was a boy of seventeen; how a trunk or box containing valuable papers was lost from the wagon and was never found, notwithstanding all their efforts to locate it. Among these papers were deeds or grants of land which has become very valuable. Father always said that the property was in the heart of New York and that it would mean a fortune if we could recover the papers. At the time they were lost there were few ways of advertising and, failing to find them, the busy years of the pioneer passed without steps having been taken to establish ownership of this land. In later life I became interested in genealogy and in tracing the family back to 1620, I found most interesting data which I took to a lawyer, but too late to acquire the lost estate as under the statute of limitations the time had expired only a few years before. Now Van Cortlandt Manor belongs to the park system of New York City, and its grey stone Manor House, where Washington and other revolutionary heroes were entertained, contains much of historic value. The large old-fashioned kitchen with its fireplace and crane is filled with utensils and furniture of "ye olden tyme" and the commodious rooms with various collections, "antiques" or relics.

In 1697 William III, by patent, erected Van Cortlandt's large estate into the lordship and manor of Cortlandt.

The purchase of land in Cortlandt manor by Nathaniel Higbie (born 1696 to 1700), also purchases made by his son, William (born 1737), were recorded in their respective counties. The deeds to this property were evidently lost in the box which fell from the wagon when William with his family moved to Penfield.

Almond shells are everywhere at the time of planting, because of the fact that the shell is so hard and smooth.

The first almond was planted by John D. Smith, about 1870, and it was

These records were verified by Homer W. Brainard, Genealogist, 150 Warren-town Avenue, Hartford, Conn., and William A. Eardeley, Box 91, Brooklyn, N. Y.

William⁴ died Jan. 14, 1788 and letters of administration were granted a resident of Fredericksburg, a place now called Farmer's Mills, Putnam Co., Book A, Page 6--Poughkeepsie papers filed in Box 14.

John Thomas⁵ Higbie (William⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹), only BROTHER of Grandfather William⁵, left RECORDS telling of his brother, William, b. 1781, by record wife "Abigail Lane, daughter of Nathan Lane, merchant." This record contains the names of the children of William, born 1781. His first child was named Abigail after his mother, and his first son, Nathan, after her father, Nathan Lane. William bought land at Cortlandt Manor (40) He also bought from Nathan Lane, besides inheriting from his father many acres at Cortlandt Manor. This came to William⁵ from his mother, Abigail Lane, as he was her only son, and these deeds were, undoubtedly, the ones lost coming to Ponfield by wagon in 1835. Every effort failed to find them so the property became one of the most beautiful parks in New York City -- "Van Cortlandt Manor."

NATHANIEL HIGBIE (son of Edward¹) had at least five children, whose names have been recovered. His son -

NATHANIEL³, born 1696 to 1700. The White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y., Mortgagors show, liber A, page 142: Nathaniel Higbee, yeoman, of Cortlandt Manor, Westchester County, 6 Apr. 1764, bought land for 150 pounds from Augustus Van Cortland, gentleman, of New York City: and it was evidently on this land that his son, William, lived for some time. The disposal of this land does not appear on record.

WILLIAM HIGBIE (Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹), born about 1737; died 1788; married first about 1760 (unknown); married second, about 1780, Abigail (Lane?). Descendants of his son, John, claim that he had two wives and that a son, William, was born to the second wife and was much younger than John. The Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y., Surrogate records show, liber A, page 6, that administration of the estate of William Higby of Fredericksburg, Dutchess County, N. Y., farmer, 16 Jan. 1788, was granted to the widow Abigail: while the original papers in file box 14 show Abigail Higby of Fredericksburgh precinct, Dutchess County, N. Y., now Kent, Putnam County, N. Y., widow of William of the same place, farmer, gave a bond for 200 pounds with Devoe Bayley and Jonathan Austin of the same, farmers, on 15 Jan. 1788. He left no will; hence he died about 1788. Poughkeepsie deeds show, liber 8, page __, William Higby of Fredericksburgh, 18 Nov. 1782, buys for 64 pounds 128 acres of land exclusive of highways on the line of Cortlandt's Manor, Westchester County, N. Y., but situated in Fredericksburgh: southwest corner bounded by Joseph Gregory; north by Jeremiah Hughson: from S. Dodge, commissioner of forfeiture: the land formerly belonged to Roger Morris and his wife Mary (nee Phillips) who fled to Canada as tories. White Plains deeds, liber H, page 434, show -- William Higby, yeoman, of Westchester County (no town named) 22 Mch. 1773, buys for 103 pounds land in Cortlandt Manor from James Cock, sooper, of Westchester County: and again, liber H, page 432, William Higby (no place given) buys for 115 pounds land in Cortlandt Manor on the line of Dutchess County, 25 Jan. 1773 (recorded 23 Apr. 1773) from James De Lancey, sheriff of Westchester County, property formerly of Nathan Lane, merchant, now in the hands of his executors, George and Mary Lane. The New York City Surrogate records show, liber 24, page 234, the will of Nathan Lane of Cortlandt: 15 Oct. 1763, proved 5 Nov. 1763; wife Mary; son Nathan not 21; son George, farm in Phillips Precinct, Dutchess now Putnam County: "daughters at home" but no names are given; executors were wife and son George.

William Higbie had at least two children, one by each wife, and probably other children; but the records in the family of the descendants of his son, John, show only these two children:

John Thomas⁵ Higbie (William⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹) (also called Johannes) was born April 1, 1762; married in Westchester County in 1787, to Phebe Hadden and moved back to Jamaica. His descendants claim he was born in Westchester or Dutchess County. He had seven children.

WILLIAM⁵ HIGBIE (William⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹) was born _____, 1781; died July 22, 1838; married Abigail Peck, daughter of Abijah Peck and Mindwell Close. Abijah Peck (son of John Peck of Milford and Sarah (Adams)), born April 3, 1758, died Nov. 12, 1848, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, entering the Continental Army in January, 1776. He was under arms when the Declaration of Independence was read to the American Army and one of the Sentinels when it evacuated the City of New York. He served in several campaigns and was in the battle of White Plains. After the war he resided in North Salem, N. Y., and there, Nov. 18, 1784, married Mindwell (daughter of Deacon Solomon Close, Jr.) and shortly after removed to Galway, N. Y., where he resided until 1794, when he removed to Clifton Park, N. Y., where he resided until his death, Nov. 12, 1848. He was ordained a minister of the Gospel, March 12, 1801, and preached in the Baptist church forty-seven years. He was a man of great influence and extensive usefulness both as a citizen and a christian.

landed: 10 Oct. 1787, arrived 11 Oct. 1787; wife Mary; son Robert and 11 children. From an English immigrant, probably from London, England. "Immigrant" but no record was found; no record was found with the name.

William Wright had at least two children; one by each wife, and possibly other children; but the records in the family of the descendants of his son, John, show only these two children.

John Thomas Wright (William's, Robert's, Robert's, Robert's) (also called John) was born April 1, 1782; married in Washington County, Va. to Anne Robert and moved back to Virginia. His descendants claim to be from a Washington or Robinson County. He had seven children.

THE HIGBY - HIGBEE - HIGBIE FAMILY REUNIONS

La Grange Inn, a landmark on the south shore of Long Island, has been in existence more than two hundred years and has always been under the management of a Higbie. The old Inn played a prominent part in Revolutionary days. Records show that General Lafayette, when visiting Long Island as the Nation's guest, was entertained at the Inn. The entire tract where Christ Church and the Inn are located was owned by members of the family. For several years they have held annual reunions. The family is one of the oldest in the country and has over six thousand scattered over the United States. Edward Higby was the first member of the family to come from Ivinghoe, England, to America. His descendants now live in practically every town and village on Long Island.

THE FIFTH REUNION

On September 17 and 18, 1926, Mrs. Francena Adele Higby and her son, Roy Clifton Higby, became hosts and entertained as their guests at their popular Adirondack Summer Resort, "Higby Camp", Big Moose, N. Y., the Highbys - Higbees and Highbies of America. A royal welcome was given the Rochester and Western New York members who attended the reunion for the first time, Mrs. Horace Higbie, of Wellsville, N.Y.; her daughter, Mrs. Onnolee Higbie Earley, of Olean, N.Y.; and Mrs. Ida Higbie Forbes, of Rochester, N.Y., who described it in the following letter home:

September 18th, 1926

"I have worked for twenty years on our genealogy seeking every possible clue to find the descendants of Edward¹, Nathaniel², Nathaniel³, and William⁴. William⁵, our grandfather, b. 1781 at Fredericksburg, N. Y.; came to Penfield with his family in 1835.

My life's dream has been fulfilled. I have found many of them here about my own age or younger--descendants of grandfather's brother, John, and we all had our photographs taken together. When I first saw so many Judges, Lawyers, Doctors, Professors, and Ministers arriving, I wondered what I could say to interest them at the dinner but after Friday Night around the great fireplace and all asking, "how do you spell your name and where are you from?" we felt like brothers and sisters. I also found that they had been as anxious to hear of the Rochester Higbies as we were to hear of our kin on Long Island. Found the spelling of the name was changed by the lawyers in different states in recording deeds, etc. Connecticut - "Higby"; Ohio - "Higbee"; and Long Island retains the original name used by Edward's son, Nathaniel² - "Higbie". A finer group of people I never met anywhere and it was like a dream seeing some in this generation so like father, Uncle Silas, Alanson and Nathan. I had heard of Judge Enoch Higbee of Atlantic City and found that he looked enough like Cousin Nate of Chicago to be his twin brother. His brother, Absalom, was Cousin Frank Higbie's double. The Judge was as proud of his kin as we are and he said that the characteristics remained the same--generation after generation--honesty, loyalty, courage, truthfulness, patriotism, religious, moral, upright and usually Republicans. He was jolly and full of jokes and said that all the family loved humor.

Alice Higby Downs of Burlington, Vt., is the eldest living Higbie, 91, and she didn't seem a day over 65 years. I was so thrilled to find that my husband's great grandfather, Squire Forbes, who started the "iron foundries", lived in Connecticut when she was a child and the Forbes and Higbies intermarried even that far back. All were so interested in church work--even the present young married people. Sunday afternoon at dusk Onnolee played hymns in the hotel parlor and all came in, joining in the songs. How wonderful and inspiring it was to hear all of those Higbie voices ringing over those old mountains. It seemed like a vision of the next life when we shall all be reunited again!! We were there from Friday till Tuesday and made many good friends. We were especially glad to meet the descendants of grandfather William's⁵ brother, John Thomas⁵."

7th Gen. GEORGE LANE HIGBIE (Samuel Edward⁶, John Thomas⁵, William⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹), b. in the Town of Jamaica, Queens County, Long Island, July 6, 1819 (one year younger than father); m. Francena Adele Higby (daughter of Franklin and Elizabeth Jones of Sperryville) married Oct. 15, 1890, James Henry Higby (James Harrison⁷, Jeduthan⁶, Jeduthan⁵, John⁴, Edward³, John², Edward¹), who was born at Turin Lewis County, N. Y. April 27, 1843. On his father's return from the Civil War he took up the business of trapper and guide in the Adirondack Mountains and became familiar with every section of this wild country. He was for sixteen years guide for Hon. Lewis Lawrence and his son of Utica, N. Y., and the last survivor of the Lawrence guides. He was active in public affairs and was the first Justice of the Peace in Webb Herkimer County, N. Y., from 1894-1896. He was Republican in politics; a Mason in Booneville Lodge F. and A. M.; member of Oneida Chapter R. A. M. and Oriental Lodge No. 224 at Utica. For forty-eight years a consistent member of the Methodist Church and was active in church work. In 1886 he erected at Big Moose Lake a camp built of logs which he developed later into a hotel. As landlord he was very popular. His knowledge of the mountains made him a most interesting host. He was renowned as one of the most learned men in this wild and interesting region. During the latter part of his life he spent his winters at his home at Utica where he died Dec. 21, 1913.

Children born at Big Moose, N. Y.:

1. Roy Clifton Higbie, b. Aug. 1, 1893; m. in 1915, Freida Lillian Strack, who was born Feb. 28, 1894 at Amsterdam, N. Y.

A banquet was served to the party, with Roy C. Higby and his mother, Mrs. F. A. Higby, managing owners of Higby Camp, as host and hostess. He proved himself to be a most genial host and toastmaster at the reunion. At the conclusion of a program of speeches a silver cup, suitably engraved was presented to Mrs. Higby. It is needless to say that at no reunion has there been such lavish hospitality shown. There were more than 150 members present.

George Herbert Higbie (Alexander⁷, Daniel⁶, James⁵, Henry⁴, John³, Samuel², Edward¹) born at Springfield, Queens County, Long Island, March 25, 1859. First President of the Higbie Association which met in the Presbyterian Church at Springfield Gardens, Oct. 14, 1922. Educated at New York University. Real Estate and Loan Broker of Springfield Gardens--taking an important part in the development of that section. He retired in May, 1922; removing to Morris Plains, N. J. Served the town of Jamaica as Commissioner of Highways. Fourteen years Grand Secretary and Grand Chief Templar of the International Order of Good Templars. Delegate to the International Lodge Conventions at Hamburg, Germany, in 1911 and at Christiana, Norway, in 1914. On Board of Directors in Public School Management. Married Feb. 17, 1880, Alice Ann Amborman. Two daughters: Mrs. Joseph Winifred Berger and Alice Cecilia, who married Rev. Archie Hine Hook at Morris Plains, N. J.

Judge Enoch Alonzo Higbee of Somers Point, N. J. Common Pleas Judge and present Counsellor for the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders. Born at Leed's Point, April 22, 1863, son of Captain Enoch and Bethiah Higbee. Captain Higbee was a veteran of the California gold rush of 1849. Judge Higbee holds the honor of being the youngest lawyer ever to be selected President of the Atlantic County Bar Association and he presided at the meeting which saw the founding of the State Bar Association. Since 1904, he has served as a Director of the Union National Bank of which he is now President. He was four times Mayor of Somer's Point, and for twenty years Atlantic County Solicitor. As a lawyer the Judge has the reputation of being painstaking and diligent: as a jurist, of being just: and as a public speaker, of being popular and pleasing. His gift of oratory gave him an easy command of his hearers and did much to make him one of the outstanding figures of his profession. During the World War, he used his oratorical abilities to good advantage as a "Four Minute Man". On May 2, 1885 he married Ann Eliza Cake McCullom, daughter of James and Mary McCullom of Cedar Lake. Ann was born at Port Republic, N. J., Aug. 11, 1863. Their children: Enoch A. Higbee Jr., Margate City, Solicitor; Mrs. Raymond Smith; Mrs. Sidney Scull; and Miss Clara Higbee, all of Somer's Point; and Mrs. William C. Boyer of Atlantic City.

Judge Edward⁸ Higbee (Jesse⁷, Obadiah⁶, Obadiah⁵, Peter⁴, Edward³, Edward², Edward¹) was born at Ashland, Ohio in 1847. Spent three years at Iowa State University. Taught school and read law. Married at Lancaster, Mo., Mary Isabelle Berney, of Deersville, Ohio, 1848. Elected to the Legislature of Missouri in 1894. In 1916 appointed a member of the District Draft Board, served as chairman for 16 months. Elected Judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri on the Republican ticket in 1920, term expiring Dec. 31, 1922. The following February the Supreme Court appointed him a member of the Supreme Court Commission for a term of four years. "The Commission consisting of four men learned in the law chosen by the Judges for the ablest help to the Court within the State." He served as Grand Master of Free and Accepted Masons. He was elder of the Christian Church, of Kirksville, in 1923. For twenty years Secretary of the School Board of Kirksville. Dwelt in Kirksville in 1923.

Judge Edward Cady Higbee was born at Plainville, Wisconsin, Sept. 16, 1855. Graduate of University of Wisconsin. He settled in Arcadia, Wisconsin, and practiced law. He was a Republican in politics and active in the party. His high standing led to his appointment as President Judge in the 6th Judicial Circuit of Wisconsin, June 5, 1909, to which office he has been repeatedly elected since then. He resided at La Crosse in 1924.

Judge Edward David Shurtleff Higby was born at Willsboro, Essex County, New York, Sept. 19, 1863. A prominent lawyer and Judge of the Circuit Court of his state. Living at Marengo in 1926.

Judge Harry Higbee was born at Pittsfield, Illinois, Dec. 13, 1854. He was a student for a time at Yale University. Studied law at Columbia and Union College, Chicago. He practiced law and in June, 1897, was elected Circuit Judge, which office he was holding in 1926 with much credit. For twenty-seven years of service the Supreme Judges of the State have chosen him to serve as Appellate Judge. Member of the Episcopal Church, of the Masonic Order, and the Elks. Married at Pittsfield, Dec. 18, 1879, Emma Hicks, who was born April 18, 1854 and who died at Pittsfield, July 12, 1881. He married secondly at Pittsfield, July 8, 1919, Maude Moreland, who was born at Clinton, Illinois, Aug. 23, 1874. His father Chauncey Lawson⁸ Higbee (Elias⁷, Isaac⁶, John⁵, Edward⁴, John³, Edward², Edward¹) was born in Tate Township, Clermont County, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1827; married at Quincy, Feb. 14, 1854, Julia May White, who was born at Georgetown, Ohio, June 3, 1833. He settled at Pittsfield shortly after his marriage and by his personal energy he became a leading lawyer in the new state, and was elected to the office of Circuit Judge, which office he filled with credit for twenty-three years, and was chosen by the Supreme Judges to act as Appellate Judge for seven years. He died at Pittsfield, Dec. 9, 1884. A marvelous record for father and son.

Judge Clark Earl Higbee was born April 28, 1883. Graduated in law from University of Michigan, 1906. Practiced law at Grand Rapids, Michigan until 1912 when he was appointed Judge of Probate Court of Kent County, Michigan. His father Lewis Edward Higbee was born near Lockport, N. Y., June 16, 1846. Graduated, 1885, from the University of Michigan, Medical Dept. Practiced medicine at Potterville, Michigan. He married Ella Amelia Cranston, whose ancestor John Cranston was Governor of Rhode Island. He was successful in his practice and a man of high character in all walks of life.

Absalom Henry Higbee, brother of Judge Enoch Higbee, was active in the development of Somer's Point, N. J. Real estate and insurance. He was a most substantial man and citizen.

7th Gen.

ISAAC HENDRICKSON HIGBIE (Samuel Edward⁶, John Thomas⁵, William⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹), b. Nov. 11, 1814, in Jamaica. Brother of George Lane⁷ Higbie. Isaac married May 4, 1836, Ann Mills, daughter of John Samuel and Catherine (Phillips).

Abram Burtis⁸ Higbie (Isaac Hendrickson⁷, Samuel Edward⁶, John Thomas⁵, William⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹), b. May 23, 1850, at Jamaica; m. in 1878, Mary Elizabeth Norstrand, at Springfield, Queens County. Abram Burtis Higbie settled on part of his father's homestead and Springfield Gardens grew up about his home. The first Higbie Reunion, held on Long Island, Oct. 14, 1922, was greatly assisted by him and his wife, who arranged for it at their home--but so many came, the meeting had to be held in the Presbyterian Church (near their home, where he was elder and a member of that church for 48 years). Both he and his wife took a deep interest in the genealogy of the Family and were active at every reunion. He died Jan. 12, 1925.

Children born at Proctor:

1. Wilbor Enoch II, b. Feb. 9, 1923
2. Dale Stroke, b. Jan. 14, 1925

His father Wilbor Enoch Higbee (Nathaniel⁷, James⁶, Nathaniel⁵, James⁴, Nathaniel³, Nathaniel², Edward¹). James⁴ was a cousin of our great grandfather William⁴. Wilbor Enoch was born at Monkton, Vt., March 30, 1862. In 1879 he entered the Vermont Marble Company at Proctor, Vt., with which Company he remained in various relations all his life. At his death in Dec., 1922, he had been Secretary of the Company, and General Superintendent of the Finishing Dept. for many years. He rose steadily in the Company and was one of the foremost men of the world. The Company had quarries in all the marble-producing countries. He was a strong force in extending this art in memorial and architectural work. The best artists were employed in decorative work. It was his ambition to excel and do more for art than had ever been done before.

He was active in public affairs of Proctor. For twenty-five years he was a member of the School Board and Prudential Committee of the place. In 1890 he assisted in organizing the Proctor Union Church of which he was deacon for thirty-two years, Superintendent of the Sunday School and prominent in all the work of the Church. He represented the town of Proctor in the State Legislature and was Moderator of the Town Meeting for twenty years. Director of the Proctor Trust Company and West Rutland Trust Company. Actively associated with the Proctor Library. Director of the Proctor Hospital. He was esteemed and loved by all the people; always very kind and considerate of the men he employed; helpful to the young in Education and a good citizen in all his relations to the State. Wilbor Enoch Higbee married, 1890, Ellen Cecilia Creer, who was born at Hibernia, N. J., Oct. 10, 1870. Graduate of Middlebury High School, Vermont. She died March 7, 1908. Daughter of Robert and Eleanor Craine, born on the Isle of Man, and married there April, 1860.

Children living:

2. Eleanor Creer, b. Jan. 6, 1896. Graduate of Wellsley College, 1917

Seward Higby, a lawyer and farmer, was born at Turin, Lewis County, New York, June 4, 1858. Removed to New Hartford, Iowa. Graduated from the University of Michigan, 1889. Admitted to practice of law in Iowa, 1890. His large interest in land, inherited from his father, took up most of his time. In 1923 he stated, "As to my financial interests, they are burdens. I have seven farms, aggregating 1040 acres of Iowa's best producing corn lands, valued at about $300 per acre." He never married and lives at Cedar Falls.

Clinton David Higby, author of the Higbie Genealogy, containing names of 6000 Higby - Higbie - Highbies in America, told of the completion of his work and that the books would soon be ready for distribution. He gave us our first glimpse of our English Progenitors--a few paragraphs of which I give here -- so few were able to purchase the book as the one edition was soon exhausted and no more can be secured:

THE HIGBIE GENEALOGY

As early as 779 in the region of England, thirty-five miles northwest of London where Hertfordshire-Buckinghamshire and Bedfordshire touch, we find the name Archbishop Hygebeorht, spelled also "Hygebryht" (in the Catholic Encyclopaedia, vol. IX - Page 232, spelled Higbert).

From Anglo-Saxon Hygebeorht composed of hyge meaning mind and courage and beorht (bright). The name originally meant good courage or bright mind. The name Hygbed, 1481, appears in the Manor of Ivinghoe County Bucks, of a collector of taxes and in the village of Edelsborough, eight miles from Tring, in a subsidy list in 1522. In the Parish registers of Aldenham County, Herts, between the years 1545 and 1654, the form of the name appears Higbyt - Higbit and Higby. Emmy Hygby appears in a marriage record in 1587. Margaret Higbee in 1669. John Higbee in 1705 and Higby in 1740. Higbie - ie ending is preferred in Scotland. It often occurs that different forms of spelling the name is used in the same family.

Professor Ernest Weekley, University College, Nottingham, England, an authority on English surnames, wrote June 9, 1919, "Higbyt occurring with Higby, etc. may stand for Anglo-Saxon Hygebeorht.

It is probable that John, b. 1480, and his brothers were born in the parish of Ivinghoe. The Higbeds were Anglo-Saxons who had withstood the Norman Conquest. Some of the ancient Anglo-Saxon families possessed wealth and power. These Higbeds are given in the early history of Buckinghamshire as one of the prominent families.

These earliest progenitors of Edward Higby, which have been found by searches made in the parishes themselves in the authorized copies of the parish registers, among private papers, and in libraries and museums not only establish the Higby family in this region of England and show its origin to be far back in the history of the country, but they give a good insight into the sort of people they were, dependable, strong and sturdy.

The briefest story of the occupancy of England, Britons first, Romans in the year 410, Anglo-Saxon from 450, Danes from 800, Normans 1066; but with the Anglo-Saxon spirit holding firmly and blending the surviving characteristics of the different races in the product of today, which ranks among the best in the world. It is always impossible to destroy essential living usages of a people. Hence, the local organizations of the Anglo-Saxons remained.

Edward, son of John of Ivinghoe, lived under conditions that favored migration; he was living among those of whom many went to England. The names in a family follow down the generations; and the names show that it was Edward who went to New England.

It is probable that the first of the series of inquiries, the results of which were published in the form of a book of the ancient Egyptian families preserved in the hieroglyphs are given in the early history of Egyptology as one of the results.

These earliest fragments of the early history of Egyptology were in the position of a fragment in the history of the early history of the world, and it is difficult to see how they could be in any other position of history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history.

The history of the world is the history of the world, and it is not possible to see how they could be in any other position of history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history.

It is not possible to see how they could be in any other position of history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history, and how they could be in any of the history.

EDWARD HIGBY AND HIS DESCENDANTS

Edward Higby, baptised, 1616, came to New London, Conn., 1646. His progenitors were living in the Parish of Ivinghoe about thirty-five miles northwest of London. They had been living in that immediate region for several hundred years, probably from the days of Offa, the Mercian King. The Family is unique both in its name and being restricted to this one known region of England. The earliest record was the name of Archbishop Higbert in 779, whose church province included this diocese; and again in 834 in the same diocese; at Edelsborough, 1300; at Chesham in 1332; and in the Parish of Ivinghoe in 1368. The name occurs later in Little Gaddesden, Groat Gaddesden, Aldbury, Aldenham, Pitstone, and Tring, where George Washington's ancestors are recorded. All these places are within a comparatively small region, extending from twenty to forty miles. Persons bearing this name are also found in London and Bedfordshire.

THE SEVENTH REUNION, OCT., 1928

The seventh reunion took place at the historic La Grange Inn between Huntington and West Islip, Long Island. Dr. William S. Higbie, of Philadelphia, was elected President, succeeding George Herbert Higbie, of Morris Plains, N. J.

Dr. William Smithers Higbee, President of Higbie Association since 1928, was born Feb. 10, 1863, son of James Lane⁸ Higbee (Mark⁷, Jesse Smith⁶, Jeremiah⁵, Edward⁴, John³, Edward², Edward¹), a ship carpenter, who was born at Port Republic, Atlantic County, N. J., Nov. 27, 1831; married at Media, Pa., Nov. 1, 1860, Amanda Melissa Carpenter, who was born at Frederica, Dela., Aug. 14, 1833; died in Philadelphia, Feb. 21, 1908. When a boy of twelve years of age, upon the death of his father, he went to live with his maternal uncle, James Lane, M. D. After six years he went to New York City to learn the ship carpentry trade and after serving three years went to South America for one year, returning to Philadelphia and continuing his trade. During the Civil War he repaired ships at Port Royal, S. C. He died in Philadelphia, June 11, 1909.

Dr. William Smithers Higbee received his classical training at the Friends School, Ludwig Institute, Philadelphia, and was graduated at Jefferson Medical College, 1884. He engaged immediately in the practice of medicine in Philadelphia. Appointed to the Pennsylvania State Board of Examiners for the Registration of Nurses and served as first President of the Board from 1902-1912. For thirty-two years he served as Industrial Physician for the Pennsylvania Chemical Salt Manufacturing Co. He was a pioneer in welfare work in the medical profession and ranked very high in both learning and professional standing. He married, first, in Philadelphia, Jan. 6, 1885, Jennie Kelly Scull, who was born in Philadelphia, Sept. 10, 1862, and who died July 21, 1917. He married, second, June 1, 1918, Sara Ledden Strang, who was born at New Lisbon, N. J., Aug. 7, 1877.

His sister, Anne Elizabeth Higbee Pierce, was born March 6, 1868. She was living in Westfield, N. J., in 1925; married in Philadelphia, Nov. 13, 1889, James Champlain Pierce, who was born at Fernandina, Fla., Aug. 12, 1859. They have also been active at the Higbie reunions for years.

William H. Higbie, member of the faculty of Huntington High School, and grandson of Alanson Higbie, of Penfield, N. Y., was elected Secretary and Treasurer, succeeding Mrs. Laura Higbee Jolly, of Brooklyn (Jonas⁶, Joseph⁵, Jonas⁴, Jonas³, Thomas², Edward¹), who was born March 26, 1859; married, secondly, Sept. 1, 1915, Louis Emmet Jolly (b. Aug. 16, 1859).

Grace Higbee, also a descendant of Jonas⁶, was born at Centerport, March 7, 1876; married at Brooklyn, March 5, 1910, John Richard Lankenau, a merchant. Lived at Newton, Mass., in 1926. Had daughter, Nancy, born Jan. 31, 1911. Both were at reunion at Higby Camp in 1926.

Carrie Seaman Higbie (b. Feb. 23rd, 1864; m. Jeremiah Robbins, of Babylon) and Elizabeth Berry, both descendants of Aaron⁴ Higbee, Samuel A.³, Samuel², Edward¹, were appointed on a committee to arrange the program for 1929.

The Rev. Edward J. Burlingham, rector of Christ Church, Babylon, offered a place in the Church for a bronze tablet to be erected by the Higby Family, as a memorial for those of that name who were prominently identified with the early history of the village.

THE EIGHTH REUNION, OCT. 12, 1929

The eighth annual reunion of the Higbie Family was held at the La Grange Inn, Babylon, L. I., on Saturday, Oct. 12th, 1929. Dr. William S. Higbee, of Philadelphia, was elected president; Judge Enoch Higbee, of Atlantic City, vice-president; and William H. Higbie, of Huntington, L. I., secretary and treasurer. Rev. Edward J. Burlingham, rector of the Babylon Episcopal Church, was voted an honorary member of the Higbie Association. He was the first after dinner speaker.

Mrs. Ida Higbie Forbes, of Rochester, gave an interesting account of a recent tour she made of the ancestral country in England, during which she visited all of the churches in the Ivinghoe and Tring sections where members of the family were regular attendants five or six centuries ago.

THE BUREAU OF THE ARMY, OCT. 11, 1908

The first annual meeting of the Army Medical Association was held at the Hotel Hamilton, New York, on October 11, 1908. The meeting was attended by a large number of officers and men of the Army Medical Department, and was presided over by the Surgeon General, Dr. H. H. Henshaw. OUR VISIT TO THE CHURCHES ATTENDED BY OUR "HIGBIE" ANCESTORS
WHO LIVED TWENTY-FIVE MILES NORTHWEST OF LONDON, FROM 1300
TO 1620, WHEN EDWARD HIGBIE WENT TO AMERICA - NEW LONDON, CONNECTICUT.

On July 6th, 1928, my daughter Vivian and I took the 1:30 P.M. train from London, arriving at "Chesham" an hour later. We visited the quaint old church, with its beautiful churchyard on the hill-top with an immense "Cedar of Lebanon" spreading out its generous branches as if to bless us all! Leading from the gate to the church, on each side of the walk, were the tallest, finest tree-roses I ever saw: and all, covered with bloom - some five or more inches across. Other large oak and beech trees and globular yellow cedars were also in the churchyard and many varieties of flowering shrubs. We walked down one of the oldest streets till we reached a garage in what must have been an "ancient Inn," kept by a fine old Englishman and his wife. They smiled and became interested at once when we said we wanted to go to "Ivinghoe" and all the other ancestral "Higbie" churches in the neighboring towns. He had a beautiful car "only six months old," he proudly stated, and we had a wonderful ride of eight miles to "Tring." In "Chesham" he drove through narrow old streets with buildings that looked as if they were built in 1300 - as it is claimed. Only a few miles on our way we came to the little church of "Pitstone," the oldest looking of all, and partly crumbling away; but it is to be restored. The Parish house is fine, showing the church is very much alive. We drove over beautiful country very similar to our Kent country here in Tunbridge Wells, until we suddenly came to the interesting town of "Ivinghoe." Here we found the beautiful old church and a man whose family had lived opposite the church for two hundred years showed us about and gave us the name of an old gentleman in Tring (Mr. G. N. Glover) who knew every one for miles around. He was the brightest little man, scarcely grey, with red cheeks, looking about sixty but they said he was over eighty. He is still head of a large grocery firm and we found him and talked with him. He remembered several Higbies that he knew years ago, and told us of a lady in Tring who would remember more, but we did not have the time before our train to look her up.

(After reading this paper, I discovered that a member of the Tring Higbie family was present; the wife of Rev. Frederick H. J. C. Chambers of London; then Rector of the Episcopal Church at Greenwich, N. Y., who spoke to us. They were married just before leaving for New York and brought with them photographs of many of her family. She was kind enough to give me one. This, of course, was the final joy of my trip as I had met a real Higbie descendant from Tring, England. It is needless to say that they were the guests of honor at the Higbie reunion of 1928 and have been every year since.)

In the floor of the Ivinghoe church were several brass plates with names marking burials in 1368. "Ivinghoe" is now but a shadow of its former self, but its name has been immortalized by Sir Walter Scott, for from it he took the title of his great romance "Ivanhoe." (We must read again this wonderful story and perhaps we may be able to gain more knowledge of our illustrious ancestors as he describes them.) The fine cruciform church was once the center of a market town. It is built chiefly in the decorated style, ornamented with rich woodwork. The finely carved "bench-ends" are most rare. The roof and pulpit are fine specimens of the carving of those days. There are many beautiful trees in the churchyard and very old markers for the graves.

We drove over the old "Ichnielf Way" marked on the "Ordinance Survey" as a Roman Road. It is actually so old that its beginnings are lost in the dim past and it probably is one of the oldest roads in Europe. The Romans occupied England in 410, 2500 years ago, Anglo-Saxons in 450, Danes from 800, Normans 1066. If you would know something of its history and romance read Richard Thomas' famous book "The Ichnielf Way," says the guide book.

We suddenly came upon a strange treeless hill with short grass called "Beacon Hill" or "Whale-back." We did not attempt to climb it as it was almost perpendicular called "break-neck," and we were not anxious to end our journey just there. The view is said to be beyond description, inspiring, stretching on for ten miles in every direction. Manor houses, quaint square towered churches, and only one spire - the "Leighton": a nobly proportioned church whose lofty spire is a conspicuous object for miles around. We were thrilled at that as Leighton is the name of my only son, and we tried hard to go there, but it was ten miles and we could not get back in time. We tried again next morning, but our train left too soon, so we must wait till "next time."

EDELSBOROUGH is three miles from the village of Ivinghoe. Parish comprised Dagnall, Hudnall and Northall, population in 1926, 1,378. Church dates from 1300 - the earliest church of all. The building displays importance and dignity, and in the church are beautiful examples of the best work of the period. The most important feature of the fittings is the pulpit and canopy. A fine example of the 15th century octagonal pulpit, of a "wine glass form" and the canopy is exquisite in design and workmanship. Numerous old inns are near by: The "Carpenter's Arms," "Hole and Square," "Axe and Compass," "The Bell" standing opposite the church - so named because the bell-ringers frequented it - and "The King's Head."

What can we say of the wonderful panorama spread before us here! To the right is the long line of Dunstable Downs, then as the eye ranges westward there are the green pastures of the Vale of Aylesburg, renowned for its white ducks and broad green pastures, with the hill of Brill in the background and the wooded slopes of the Buckinghamshire Chilterns still farther left.

The fields spread out like a series of rugs of different colors with borders of hedges and such beautiful forests and individual trees as one sees only in England, beautiful England. The town of Dagnall looked like a "dream city" but we were soon in it and found the same ivy covered houses with roses and flowers in front. Great and Little Gaddesten came next, and our driver told us that "Little Gaddesten" was the larger and had the very lovely church with a copy of the "Treaty of 1891" in colored print, in the vestibule.

"This is a translation and facsimile of signatures of the original treaty of 1839 which was confirmed by the six powers in the famous treaty of 1891 - the breaking of which by Germany is responsible for present war with the British Empire."

A Scrap of Paper. (Too long to copy)

This was especially interesting since reading, July 5th, 1928, (the day before), that the Germans objected to the inscription over a memorial building in Belgium "Destroyed by the fury of the Germans - restored by the generosity of the Americans."

The little church lacked the formal cold effect found in so many, and it touched our hearts and bade us come in and worship.

We next came to Aldbury, the "Clinton Magna" of Mrs. Humphrey Ward's novel "Bessie Costrall," with its old cottages clustered round the green and pond; the ancient stocks and whipping post, and above all its encircling hills. Aldbury is one of the most lovely and interesting villages. The church is in keeping with its surroundings. The beautiful Vernay Chapel containing a monument to Sir Robert Whittingham who was killed in the battle of Tewksbury; the disused staircase which led to an upper room, for retreat: the beautiful stained glass windows and altar. There was an old, interesting parchment of 1535, and a churchyard with the largest beeches we have seen, and other rare trees.

We completed the circle of towns and churches in three and one-half hours and reached the "Rose and Crown" for dinner and the night. As we entered our room the sun was behind the Tring Church tower, which is directly across the street, and the grand old bell struck seven - which seemed like a benediction. We were unable to get into the church after dinner, as the choir was practicing and the door closed. We enjoyed the organ as we wandered about the churchyard, then we strolled about the quaint old town - the largest of the group.

The "Rothschild Manor" entrance is next to the hotel. The grounds are not open to the public as the family are occupying it.

We went over to the church right after breakfast next morning and found the sexton, a well educated man of forty-five or more, who said his father moved there from Kent County (same as Tunbridge Wells) fifty years ago and was sexton until his death, a few years ago. The son was all through the World War. We asked if he were wounded; he said, "Just buried alive;" said there was a terrible battle and shells burst all about the trenches, burying several of them in one deep trench. He never knew who took them out, but when he "came to" he was lying in a church, and opening his eyes he saw the beautiful rafters above him and thought he was in his own Tring church. He was some time recovering but was not seriously injured again.

He knew the whole history of the church, of course, from boyhood and opened a great iron box of the 14th century with five great locks and a brass key, twenty inches long and very heavy.

He let me copy a record of the baptism of George Washington's grandfather:-

"Lawrence Washington baptized 1635, died in Westmoreland Co. Virginia, U.S.A. 1676. He and brother John purchased land in Va. in 1636. Lawrence's second son Augustine married Mary Ball who had four sons and two daughters. The second was christened "George" b. Feb. 22nd, 1732 at Bidge's Creek in Westmoreland Co., Va.

George Washington was descended from the Washingtons of Sulgrave Manor, the family running back to a Norman Knight, Sir Wm. de Hertburn. About the year 1186, became knight of a little village of Wessyngton or Washington in the North of England from which the family took its name. Many of the Washingtons became eminent. One in the 16th century was Mayor of Northampton and in 1538 received "Sulgrave Manor" as a gift from King Henry VIII. Several of the Mayor's descendants were conspicuous in the armies of Charles I. They were a successful, thrifty race, owning lands and estates, Magistrates and good soldiers, marrying well and increasing their wealth and strength from Generation to Generation."

The Tring Church was the largest of the group, and had an ancient staircase with stones worn deep by the Monks going to the upper room for prayer or to the opening in the wall called "the squint" where they could see the people. A "stranger's gallery" at the back where a seat on each side, almost like a pulpit, was occupied by church wardens to guard the congregation from strangers.

A beautiful monument to William Gore, Lord Mayor of London, who died 1707, and tributes to him and his wife Elisabeth. Parts of the old church of the 13th century and coffin plates, tiles, etc., were most interesting.

Pendley Manor, the estate of the Andersons, the last descendants of the Washingtons, have just placed beautifully carved reredos, figures carved in wood life size, representing scenes in the Bible and painted in colors by one of the best living artists, Messrs. A. R. Mowbray of Oxford, and new altar riddell posts and angels, which for beauty and dignity cannot be matched in the country.

I hope that many of you may visit this beautiful spot in England. When seated comfortably in the train on the way home, your mind will go back to these glorious hills, and you will vow to visit them again and again. Nature is arrayed in her most gorgeous robes. "The scent of life is never fuller in the woods than now." "Is there anything so grand and fine and beautiful as the open air? How glorious it is to wander along to no place in particular, neither thinking of, nor caring for, the moment!" And we feel the stir of Shelly's beautiful words:

"Away, away from men and towns
To the wild wood and the Downs -
To the silent wilderness,
Where the soul need not repress
Its music, lest it should not find
An echo in another's mind,
While the touch of nature's art
Harmonizes heart to heart."

Ida Higbie Forbes,
Rochester, N. Y.

A committee composed of William Lloyd Garrison, John Jay, and others, was appointed to investigate the state of the slave trade in the West Indies, and to report thereon to the House of Commons.

The committee, in its report, stated that the slave trade in the West Indies was still carried on, and that the number of slaves imported into the colonies was increasing. It also stated that the condition of the slaves was very bad, and that they were treated with great cruelty.

The committee recommended that the slave trade should be abolished, and that the slaves should be treated as free men. It also recommended that the government should take steps to improve the condition of the slaves, and that they should be allowed to work for themselves.

The committee's report was received by the House of Commons, and it was ordered that it should be printed. The report was also presented to the House of Lords, and it was ordered that it should be printed.

The committee's report was a landmark document in the history of the abolition of the slave trade. It led to the passage of the Slave Trade Act of 1807, which abolished the slave trade in the British Empire.

Clinton D. Higby, of Erie, Pa., told of his recently published genealogy. The family is one of the oldest in this country and has over 6000 members. He also introduced Rev. Frederick H. J. C. Chambers, new rector of the Episcopal Church at Greenwich, N. Y., whose wife is a member of the Higbed family of Tring, England,--our own English cousins. They brought many photographs of the family--a most interesting surprise for us all. The last speaker was William H. Higbie, head of the Commerical Dept. in the Huntington High School. Mrs. Phinette Cooper, of Babylon, the oldest member present, who is 94 years old, was presented with a bouquet of flowers by the Association.

Members of the family were present from Brooklyn, Manhattan, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rochester, Wellsville, Olean, Greenwich, and many Long Island towns.

Western New York Higbies: Mrs. Ida Higbie Forbes; her son, Leighton Forbes and wife; Master Jack Forbes; Mrs. Ella Duke Higbie, of Wellsville; her daughters, Onnolee Higbie Earley, of Olean, N. Y., and Mrs. Anita Higbie Jones, of Wellsville; Mr. and Mrs. Yale Higbie Parce and Miss Ella Higbie Mason, of Fairport, N. Y. Mrs. Eleanor Higbie Beeman and Campbell Higbie Peck, of Brooklyn. Mrs. Grace Higbie Lankenau, of Newton, Mass., who was born at Centerport, L. I., and baptised in St. John's Episcopal Church, Huntington; and her daughter, Nancy Lankenau; Dr. and Mrs. William Smithers Higbee, of Philadelphia; his sister, Mrs. Anne Higbee Pierce, of Westfield, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. James H. Strang, of East Orange, N. J.; Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Henry J. C. Chambers, of Greenwich, N. Y., were present.

At the close of the meeting, our cousin, William H. Higbie, Secretary, took us to the beautiful cemetery and burial place of our beloved Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, where under the spell of the setting sun we again felt the power and influence of his noble life,--a fitting close for the wonderful day filled with new experiences and our first glimpse of the Higbie Ancestral Home towns of Huntington and Babylon and above all the historic La Grange Inn.

LINE FROM WHICH THE OWNERS OF THE LA GRANGE INN DESCENDED

Samuel Higby² (Edward¹) was born on the farm, near Middletown, which his father, Edward, bought from the Indian Chief Scankeet, about 1667. He was baptised in 1671 and with his parents and five other children removed to Jamaica.

Samuel A³ was born in 1708, at Jamaica and died in 1756. Some claim that he built the Inn as it was said to have been licensed to sell liquor in 1750, but his son

Nehemiah⁴ Higbee was born Aug. 27, 1753; died in 1815. Became a member of the militia of N. Y., and was granted land bounty rights which he sold. He evidently had greater wealth than Samuel A. His brother, Aaron, born 1749, was appointed guardian of Nehemiah and Christopher, 1771. On May 8th, 1775, he signed the Articles of Association in defense of his country against the British. His name appears in the list of Innkeepers. Nehemiah was first owner and keeper of the Inn, then it passed to his son Samuel⁵, born Feb. 29, 1792, who for many years ran a line of stages in company with his brother, Amos, from Brooklyn to Montauk Point by the way of Babylon. There were no railroads then. In 1824, on invitation of Congress, Lafayette stopped there and it is said that he named the Inn for his own country place in France, "La Grange". Summer guests considered it their home and many of the families who located there first made their home at the hotel. Summer after summer the same persons came to enjoy the trout fishing and shooting of deer, quail, partridge, woodcock, and ducks. It was like the old hotel life in England.

Richard Terry⁶ Higbie (Samuel⁵, Nehemiah⁴, Samuel A.³, Samuel², Edward¹) was born in the hotel just named by Lafayette on Jan. 7, 1824; married in 1854, Keziah Jones, who was born in Huntington, 1827, and who died in 1904, daughter of Allet and Mary Peters. Shortly after his marriage he took charge of La Grange and kept it 47 years, when he turned it over to his sons in 1871 and built himself a home across the street and retired. He died in 1888.

Richard⁷ Higbie (Richard Terry⁶, Samuel⁵, Nehemiah⁴, Samuel A.³, Samuel², Edward¹) was born July 11, 1857. He received a common school education. Early in public affairs. Elected town clerk at the age of twenty-seven in 1884. Supervisor in 1889. Re-elected three times, Assemblyman in 1892. Re-elected twice, Senator in 1895. A consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. Republican, and prominent in the party. Author of the Higbie Armstrong Good Roads law, and was credited among the lawmakers of his State as being a just man, a wise counsellor, a tireless worker, and a fearless leader. Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York, at Senator Higbie's death in 1900, sent to his family this tribute: "I am deeply grieved and shocked at the death of Senator Higbie. He was a man of high character and most lovable disposition. His loss is severe not only for his friends but for the public." Senator Higbie died suddenly on returning home from a political convention. He was forty-three years of age. He left a considerable estate.

One son living:

John Robbins⁸ Higbie was born in 1886 and died in 1916. Graduated from Columbia University in 1905. Married in New York City in 1907, Amy Marguerite Deady, who was born at San Antonio, Texas, in 1885, daughter of Charles M. Deady and Corinne Louise Hopper Deady, of New York. 1905 to 1908 he was connected with Mech. English Dept. of N. Y. Central Ry Co. Two years with American Car and Foundry. He then engaged in merchantile and banking business at Babylon, being chosen President of the bank.

Children:

1. John Richard, b. in 1908
2. Arthur Hopper, b. in 1910
3. Mavis Terhune, b. in 1914

"The old La Grange Inn is a landmark on the south shore of Long Island, and is over two hundred years old. During all that time it was in the hands of the family but in 1924 it passed out of the family. The Association is striving to get it back if possible."

TENTH REUNION, OCT. 24, 1931

Both the tenth and the eleventh reunions were held at the McAlpin Hotel. The speakers at the tenth reunion were Dr. William S. Higbee; Dr. Edward J. Burlingham; Mrs. C. Durrell Simonds, W. A. Meyers, of Burlington, Vt.; and Mrs. C. M. Heiser, of Springfield Gardens.

ELEVENTH REUNION

The speakers were Dr. Higbee, Dr. Burlingham, George H. Higbie, of Morris Plains, Joseph Higbie Foster, Mrs. E. H. Odekirk, of Floral Park, L. I., W. H. Berry, and Prof. William H. Higbie, of Huntington.

Joseph Higbie Foster⁸ was born Aug. 16, 1869, son of Susannah and William Bennett Foster (Susannah⁷ Higbie, Joseph Skidmore⁶, Anson⁵, Stephen⁴, John³, Samuel², Edward¹). Born at Springfield, living at Inwood, L. I.

Laura Higbee⁸ (Laura Chapin⁷, Isaac⁶, Elnathan⁵, Daniel⁴, Edward³, John², Edward¹) was born Jan. 27, 1851; married, 1882, John Austin Collier. Her mother, Laura Chapin⁷ Higbee was born Dec. 24, 1815; married, 1841, Chauncey Wells Brownell, who was born in 1811, at Williston, son of Samuel Aaron Brownell and Zeruah (Forbes). Dwelt at Williston, Vt. At the reunion at Higby Camp in 1926, I met Alice⁸ Higby Downs, eldest person present (born Feb., 1836, eighth child of Levi⁷ Higby, Levi⁶, Elihu⁵, Isaac⁴, Edward³, John², Edward¹). She told me that her father was born in Canaan, Conn., and knew Squire Samuel Forbes and John Forbes (Old Bishop), who was born Jan. 1, 1760 (my husband's grandfather, whose daughter was Zeruah Forbes, who married Samuel Aaron Brownell of Williston, Vt.--so Forbes and Higbies intermarried that long ago. Squire Samuel Forbes' journal tells of the room in which Benedict Arnold slept while on a visit to the Squire with a commission from General Washington to purchase cannon from the Squire's firm of iron foundries. Ethan Allen also spent much time at his house for the firm was once Forbes and Allen, the latter having commenced as bookkeeper for the Squire.

Julia Eliza Powell was born in New York City in 1859, daughter of Emily, fourth child of Levi⁷ Higby and sister of Alice Downs. She married in 1884 Stephen Alonzo Powell, who was also at Higby Camp.

THE TWELFTH REUNION, OCT. 14, 1933

Members of the family attended the twelfth annual reunion of the Higbie-Higbee-Higby Family Association, held at Christ Church rectory, West Islip.

The members of the family were the guests for the day of Rev. Edward J. Burlingham, rector of Christ Church and a member of the Association, and of the Babylon branch of the family.

At the annual business meeting, all present officers of the Association were unanimously re-elected for another year.

The matter of purchasing a suitable tablet to place in the Babylon church as a memorial to the many Higbies who have worshipped there in the past was taken up, and a number of those present contributed to the tablet fund and it was announced that there is already in hand over $100 towards the memorial.

Following the business meeting luncheon was served in the rectory, and later several speakers were heard. The principal address was by Clinton D. Higby, who in 1927 published a 500-page genealogy of the family, tracing it back sixteen generations, nine in America and five in England.

Members of the family are found in practically every Long Island village and town. The Western New York branch of the family holds annual reunions in or near Rochester, usually in charge of Mrs. Ida Higbie Forbes, whose husband was president of Stetson University in Florida, 1885-1903.

Announcement was made that upwards of 100 members of the family, largely from the northern part of the State, were the guests from Columbus Day until Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Higby, proprietors of Higby Camp, at Big Moose, in the Adirondacks. Several years ago Mr. and Mrs. Higby entertained some 150 members of the family.

Before the meeting adjourned on Saturday, Rev. Mr. Burlingham invited all to visit him at his Bristol, Rhode Island, estate, promising to entertain them with a real Rhode Island clam bake on the shore front of the estate.

THE THIRTEENTH REUNION, OCT. 19, 1934

The thirteenth annual reunion was held in the parish house of the First Presbyterian Church, at Springfield Gardens, near Jamaica.

Following a short business meeting at noon, luncheon was served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. Dr. William S. Higbee, prominent physician of Philadelphia, Pa., was re-elected president of the society; Arthur N. Higbie, an importer, of Brooklyn, was elected vice-president to succeed Willard H. Berry, of Babylon; William H. Higbie was re-elected secretary and treasurer; and Miss Elizabeth Berry, of Babylon, was elected assistant secretary.

Resolutions of sympathy were adopted and ordered sent to the families of members who have died during the past year, these being Rev. Edward J. Burlingham, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Babylon, the only honorary member of the Society; Miss Annie C. Oakes, of Babylon; Mrs. Ella Reeves, of Jamaica; and Joseph Higbie.

Joseph H. Foster, of Inwood, was named chairman of a committee to study plans for a memorial of some kind in honor of early members of the family who settled on Long Island upwards of 300 years ago. It was the intention of the Society to place this memorial, in the form of a tablet, in Christ Church, West Islip, where many members of the family have worshipped, but the death of Dr. Burlingham and the subsequent discussion of plans to dispose of the church property at West Islip, made necessary a change in the form of the memorial.

George H. Higbie, of Morris Plains, N. J., first president of the Society and a former resident of Springfield Gardens, was toastmaster at the luncheon, and among the speakers were Edward Reeves, of Jamaica; Arthur N. Higbie, of Brooklyn; Sarah R. Higbie, of Jamaica; Richard Reeves, of Jamaica; and William H. Higbie, of Huntington.

The oldest members of the Society present were Mrs. Susan Glover, of Jamaica, who is 81 years old, and Gilbert R. Higbie, of Jamaica, (William Henry⁶, John Skidmore⁵, Stephen⁴, John³, Samuel², Edward¹). He was born Oct. 6, 1854; married Oct. 11, 1888, Ann Josephine Oakey. His sister, Sarah Rebecca Higbie, was born April 9, 1857. Living at Jamaica with her brother, who is 80 years old.

Mrs. Burtis Higbee, of Springfield Gardens, was chairman of the committee in charge of the luncheon.

The members of the Society voted to hold their fourteenth reunion on October 12th, 1935, the choice of a place being left to the executive committee, consisting of the officers and Miss Elizabeth Berry and Mrs. Carrie S. Robbins, of Babylon; Mrs. J. C. Pierce of Westfield, N. J.; J. H. Foster, of Inwood; and Miss Elizabeth Odekirk and Miss Mary Odekirk, both of Floral Park.

During the business meeting a telegram of greeting was received from Roy C. Higby, proprietor of Higby Camp, Big Moose, Adirondacks, where upwards of 100 members of the family, mostly from Northern New York, were guests at Higby Camp for the week-end.

HIGBY CAMP

The Western New York Higbies and their friends can add many testimonials in regard to the hospitality at Higby Camp, as we were privileged to spend seven summers as guests of Roy Clifton and his mother.

In reading the accounts of the happy days at La Grange Inn, where many families returned year after year, I am reminded that they were all equalled if not surpassed at Big Moose.

In 1909 we were not met at the station by Roy Clifton's fine car as in later days--but we were transferred from the train to a bus and rode over the mountains to the little steamer at the head of the lake. What joy to leave the smoke-filled train and heat and board the little steamer, drinking in the beauty of the mountains and lake, with the lengthening shadows of evening giving us peace!

The arrival of the steamer, just as everyone sat on the porches waiting to go into dinner, was most exciting. I think more enjoyable from the porch than when we were the dusty, disreputable-looking travelers. But we were transformed after the pleasure of a jump in the lake and our first steak dinner of the year, broiled over "wood coals!"

The supreme joy of the day came when we went out in our boats after dinner for a row or to drift lazily and enjoy the beautiful sunsets and cloud effects;--returning in groups, usually singing the old songs. The orchestra arrived and we adjourned to the boat house to enjoy the music and dancing.

After breakfast the first question was, "What are we going to do today?" In all the seven years we were unable to take all of the marvelous "trails" that were awaiting us.

A favorite trip was to row to the foot of the lake in our perfect "Adirondack skiffs" which were always able to withstand the huge waves usually greeting us as we returned from our three mile hike to Pine Tree Tea Room, where we enjoyed our luncheon and returned in time for dinner.

On threatening days a short row across the lake took us to another cosy tea room with entrancing paths along the shore.

A popular all day trip consisted of a row of two miles to the highway leading to Eagle Bay Hotel on Fourth Lake--a six mile walk--luncheon at the hotel, followed by a trip of the four lakes on the steamer down to Old Forge and back to the Eagle Bay Hotel--another six mile walk home--dinner, and dancing all the evening in the boat house; or a cosy evening in our cottage by the fireplace.

Higby Camp has always drawn a large number of young people--ready for sports and exercise. We were fortunate to find it in the days when our children were growing up and in college. Many came from New York and Philadelphia--teachers, lawyers, business men, and professional men, seeking rest and change.

Tennis tournaments were held, guests being invited from the other hotels on the lake.

Higby Camp always had a Regatta in August--a Gala day--boat and canoe races with banners, flags and balloons, swimming contests and last and most exciting the "punting" battles, between men in canoes, with long poles, with a stuffed ball on the end, which was to disarm the rival or push him into the water.

Then the steak suppers out in the forest, when everyone in the hotel went, with blankets and pillows for seats, flashlights for the walk back over the pine needle trails, which were full of roots and slippery places, and we must stay to enjoy the great campfire built on the shore,--and the singing,--and the stories--often ghost and bear stories until we shivered with fear!!

One never to be forgotten summer a wealthy guest furnished a real "barbecue"--when we enjoyed all kinds of rare meats, and chickens by the dozen hung on a line roasting over the great fire, which took days to prepare! Sweet corn, sweet potatoes, watermelon, pies--but words fail me! It even surpassed the "clam bake" at Cape Cod prepared by a real old sea captain in 1923.

Then the day we took the heavenly boat trip up the Racquet River--the men "carrying" the skiffs on their shoulders from lake to river--a visit and dinner at Hiawatha Lodge with "Uncle Bill," our former host for several years at Moody, Tupper Lake, where all enjoyed the wonderful bass fishing. The boat ride home with the evening shadows and reflections doubling the beauties of the shore--where evergreens, shrubs and wildflowers reached to the water's edge!

So many cottages and tents at Higby Camp added to the variety of dwellings outside the hotel and many were the rescues from drowning (?) in the tents when a big thunder storm surprised us! Heroes and heroines carried back home thrilling adventures, and once, a knock at our cabin door, and we took into the living room two of the "survivors" laden with blankets and clothing! This added to the gayety and novel experiences of the summer.

In the Rochester group we counted over forty--several summers--professors from the University with their families, President of the Board of Education, lawyers and ministers. One physician never failed us summer after summer--a great blessing in the wilds of the forest, miles from Big Moose.

When golf became popular they all planned and worked with Roy Clifton to have golf links but the great forest frowned upon all plans and in 1917 we were loth to leave our "Happy Hunting Ground" and follow our husbands to Lake Brantingham Inn where there were fields and sod galore--for golf. We found there also the steak suppers and the dancing in the boat house and our crowd spent seven more happy summers with Mr. & Mrs. L. F. Graves.

It was a great occasion when the mail arrived at 1:30. Right after the mid-day meal our group usually met in the summerhouse, directly in front of our cottage, and my husband read the paper aloud, giving the news from "the outside world." We never shall forget the day when the headlines "War Declared" stared us in the face! Many of our young men had to go.

Every summer many of the old crowd returned to Higby Camp for the day to talk over the old days, and it was with special interest that we met there for our first reunion with the Long Island Higbies.

"While virtue, piety and courage are honored among mankind, the consciousness of the worth of ancestry will ever make men try to follow the torch of glory held forth by it, and shrink from the degenerate part, even in extremity, from the recollection of former honor; this is so natural to us, that we ever call to our assistance, when hardly pushed in life, the brighter parts of our own history to confirm our conduct. It is fortifying the present from the past.

For it is a fact that no one family distinguished itself, in by far the most glorious period of Scotch history, the "Bruce Days", more than the family of Forbes."

ORIGIN OF THE NAME, FORBES

Martin (Genealogical Collections, Vol. 2, Page 17) says that "one Salvathias Forbes married Moravilla, daughter of Gregory, the great King of Scotland, about 870, and that all the Forbeses in Scotland are descended from him."

Sir Thomas Urquhart, in one of his rapsodies says that Phorbas, a Greek, was the ancestor of the family and that the appellative became a surname.

Under the article Miscellaneous Occurrences, A. D. 1304, in Lord Holes' Annals is the following: "To this period must be referred the taking of the castle of Urquhart, when Edward murdered every person in it except the wife of Alexander Bois, the Lord of the castle - the English had a religious scruple at killing a child before its birth. The child so wonderfully preserved, in due time proved a boy. Having slain a mighty bear that infested the country, he received the appellation of Forbear."

Mr. Mathew Lumsden of Tulliekerne says that "the famous Mr. Hextor Boyes says in his chronicles that 'the field of Diplin was treasonably betrayed when the Earle of Marr with the rest of the gentlemen of the North were slain; but by the Providence of God, the principal that was Lord of Driminor, had a gentlewoman to his wife, with bairne, who was delivered of a son, who brucked the surname, and none other, who being brought up by his mother's command to manhood, through his virtuous deeds was made Knight and was called Sir John Forbes with the black lip, by a mark he had on his face.'"

The following is in the handwriting of Duncan Forbes of Colloden, the father of the Lord President Duncan Forbes; he died soon after in 1704:

- Alexander. Alexander became the seventh Laird of Tolqhon - married Alison Anderson. Two sons, Wm. and
- John of Badenley. John Forbes of Badenley and father to the family of Colloden. Married, 1567, Elizabeth Keith, daughter to the Laird of Tulloch and had by her
- Duncan. Duncan, first Laird of Culloden, Inverness, Scotland and first Provost of Inverness; born 1572, died October 14th, 1654. Married Janet Forbes, born 1585, died November 8th, 1651, eldest daughter of James Forbes of Corsendae, who did bear to him John Forbes of Culloden, Captain James Forbes and Captain Duncan Forbes of Inverness. Early in the 17th century he purchased the estate of Bught, near Inverness. In 1626 he purchased Culloden of the Laird of Macintosh, the castle being at the time built up to the second story; afterwards this estate was much enlarged to 11,000 acres by the purchase of lands contiguous, made from Lord Moray, Lord Lovat the Town of Inverness, Rose of Artirlies and Rose of Kilravock. Ferintosh and Bunchrew were purchased about 1669 from Inveralochy, a son of Lovat; the former was part of the famous Thanedom of Calder or Cawdor, celebrated in Macbeth, and the name in the Gallic language signifies the Thenes' land. Bunchrew was the birthplace, November 10th, 1685, of the Lord President Duncan Forbes, and for more than thirty years his favorite residence where he studied and wrote his publications.

Duncan by great integrity, enterprise and honor, made an ample fortune and left a degree of popularity and fair fame which still throws an interest upon the family.

EPITAPH

"Here lye the bodies of Duncan Forbes of Culloden and his spouse Janet Forbes, lineally descended from the honorable families of Tolquhoun and Corsendae, respectively, who departed this life viz.- The said Janet aged 66 upon the 8th day of November anno 1651 and said Duncan aged 82 upon the 14th day of Oct. 1654.

"These polished stones
Add to thy honor not a whitt,
Which was before and still remains, complete
Thy memory shall ever recent be Preserved by such as draw their blood from thee
Who in regard of thy good fame
Receive reward by claiming to thy name;
For thy remains do honor to this place
And thy true virtue honors all thy race."

of Culloden.

Duncan Forbes of Culloden; the active exertions on the side of freedom of the first Duncan and of his son John gave the family great political weight at the close of the 17th century. They were generally in Parliament and the privilege of Ferintosh was given by the Scotch Parliament for their losses before and after the Revolution and for their signal services. Mr. John Forbes, the son of the aforesaid Duncan, was a very active patriot and member of Parliament. He died in 1734 and was succeeded by his brother Duncan, then Lord Advocate, and who from 1737 till his death in 1747 distinguished himself as Lord President of the Court of Session, and as one of the chief supporters the House of Brunswick had in the Rebellion of 1745.

In the Hall of Justice in Edinburgh, a beautiful statue and monument was erected with the following inscription:

"To Duncan Forbes of Culloden, Presiding Judge of the Supreme Court; an upright and most worthy citizen, a man of innate virtue. The Law Faculty have freely placed this monument five years after his death, 1752."

Capt. James
Forbes.

Capt. James Forbes who lived in Carthness, born Culloden, 1610. He went to America and settled in Hartford, Conn. but returned on a visit to his home, Culloden, and died there, April 15th, 1672 (See family Bible, Culloden House). He married, 1643, Agnes Munro, daughter of Geo. Munro of Pitlundie. He left a son

James.

James Forbes in Hartford who married Catherine -- (her maiden name is missing). She signs to James distribution of property as plain Catherine Forbes (See Town and Probate Court records at Hartford, Conn.)

John.

John Forbes, born Hartford, Connecticut, 1661; died 1713; married Mary Griffen of Simsbury, Connecticut.

John.

John Forbes, born Hartford, December 8th, 1695; died April 11th, 1759; married Abigail Westover, Simsbury, Connecticut.

Elisha.

Elisha Forbes, born 1731; died December 11th, 1765, Williston, Vt. Married Hannah Mills. The musty old books of Falls Village, Connecticut have this record:

John.

"John Forbes ye son to Elisha Forbes and Hannah, his wife was born Jan. 1st, 1760."

From the journal of Squire Samuel Forbes who was uncle to John and lived in Canaan, 1729-1828; "John Forbes (Old Bishop) born Jan. 1st, 1760, at 12-30 A.M., his wife Ruth Merrill was born Dec. 31st, at 11-30 P.M. making one hours difference in their ages." He and Ruth moved to Williston, Vt. from Canaan. They lived also at Fort Ann, N. Y., but died at Williston, at their daughter's house, John, Oct. 20th, 1835; Ruth in 1832. Their children were George, Elisha, Merrill, Zeruah, Polly, John, Albert and Philo.

There are many references to John in Squire Samuel Forbes' Journal. There is a reference to the room in which Benedict Arnold slept while on a visit to the Squire with a commission from Gen. George Washington to purchase cannon from the Squire's firm of iron foundries. Ethan Allen also spent much time at this house for the firm was once Forbes and Allen, the latter having commenced as book-keeper to the Squire.

"John Forbes was in the Revolutionary War and made an application for a pension on August 2, 1832, at which time he was 72 years of age and residing at Williston, Vt. His pension was allowed for eleven months and seven days actual service as a private in the Connecticut troops. A part of the time he served under Capt. Pettibone and Colonel Porter. He enlisted at Canaan, Connecticut.

Philo.

Philo Forbes, born January 28, 1785; died July 12, 1821; married Nancy Johnson, born March 8th, 1787, died March 2, 1861. Attracted by the iron ore at Ontario, New York, he moved there and had an iron foundry. Their children were - Philo, Polly, Zeruah, George, George 2nd, Polly 2nd, Michael and Merrill, twins. Three of these were Baptist ministers: Philo of Vassar, Mich.; Michael and Merrill.

Merrill.

Merrill Forbes, born at Fort Ann, New York, June 2nd, 1820; died November 22, 1884; married Maria Palmer of Sodus, New York, April 4th, 1844. She was born December 17th, 1828; died April 18th, 1909.

Converted at an early age, he with his twin brother, Rev. Michael Forbes, entered Madison University, Class of 1847. Ill health compelled him to relinquish the regular course of study, so with shorter preparation than he hoped, he went out to his work. He was ordained at Sodus, New York; served as pastor with the churches at Bethel, Marion, Walworth, Middlesex, Prattsburg, Fairport, Shelby, Wyoming, South Alabama, Ira, Napoli and East Randolph. Though never very strong he was always at work and never so happy as when engaged in hardest work. His preaching is described as evangelical, clear and forceful, and always with marked success.

Children: Merrill Pharcellus, John Franklin and George Mather (twins), Lillian, Rose, and Yale.

Forbes.

George Mather Forbes, son of Rev. Merrill and Maria Palmer Forbes, was born June 13, 1853, Middlesex, N. Y.; d. Oct. 29, 1934; m. Dec. 26, 1879, Prudence Gordon, who was born Feb. 15, 1850 and who died Jan. 21, 1903, daughter of Stephen Decatur and Nancy (Hodgman) Gordon, of Rochester, N. Y.

Prepared for college at Middlebury Academy, Wyoming, New York. At the close of his freshman year, at the University of Rochester, which he entered in 1871, he was principal of the Genesee and Wyoming Academy at Alexander and the Union School at Arcadia for two years. Then he went abroad to study at Leipsic and Berlin and traveled extensively in England, France, Germany, Austria and Italy, in company with his brother, John Franklin; spending considerable time in Rome and Paris. Upon his return to America he again taught and by reason of his studies abroad he was able to pass examinations for the Sophomore year and in 1877 and 1878 took the Junior and Senior years at Rochester University, graduating in the Class of 1878. He and his brother, John Franklin Forbes, were awarded Phi Beta Kappa keys; his brother and he having the highest standing in the class. They also secured the Davis Prize for best original orations delivered at commencement and secured the Sherman and Townsend Fellowships, treatises on Economics and Political Science and books published in the French and German languages; his brother securing the Sherman and he the Townsend.

On graduation Doctor Forbes became associate principal of Overhiser High School, Brooklyn. He left that post in 1881 to become assistant professor of Greek at the University of Rochester. In 1886 he was named professor of Greek. Later he became head of the department of philosophy and education, a position he retained until the departments were divided in 1918. He served as professor of philosophy until his retirement in 1926, becoming Professor Emeritus until his death, 1934. He was chosen commissioner of schools in 1900, a position he retained until 1906, when he became president of the Board of Education. He was president of the board until 1912, during which time he was named head of the New York State Teachers' Association. In this capacity he prepared a code of ethics for teachers which received nation-wide recognition.

He was a member of the National Society for the Study of Education, American Philosophical Association and Psi Upsilon fraternity. He received his A. B. from the University of Rochester in 1878, his A. M. from the same institution in 1881, and his LL. D. from Colgate University in 1909.

DR. SAMUEL DOUGLAS KILLAM

Accidentally Drowned at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, July 22, 1923

(Taken from Rochester Democrat)

Dr. Samuel Douglas Killam, born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, 1888, graduated from Mt. Allison University, New Brunswick, then went to Germany where he studied four years at Goettingen, receiving his Ph. D. in 1909, and was appointed assistant Professor of Mathematics at the University of Rochester the same year.

In 1910 he accepted a call from the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Canada, as assistant Professor of Mathematics. He advanced rapidly and became head of the Department of Applied Mathematics.

In 1911, he was married to Florence Forbes, daughter of Professor George M. Forbes of the University of Rochester.

At the beginning of the World War he was anxious to enlist but yielded to the judgment of Dr. Torrey, President of Alberta University, that because of his four years military training in Germany he was especially fitted for training men as officers; consequently he remained in Edmonton until 1916, when he embarked for France, returning with rank of Captain.

At the close of the war Dr. Torrey organized a college in London, England, for advanced instruction of discharged soldiers during the interval before they could be transported to this country and Dr. Killam remained several months as a member of his faculty.

He again took up his work in Edmonton and in 1921 he lectured in the summer school at the University of California, Berkeley.

Dr. and Mrs. Killam and their year old son came to Rochester in May and July first left for a visit to Dr. Killam's parents at their summer camp near Yarmouth. Monday, Professor Forbes received a telegram announcing his death by accidental drowning, and left immediately for Yarmouth.

Dr. Killam was a man of sterling integrity, an unusually attractive personality, and made many warm friends in this city to whom the news of his death will come as a great shock.

George Mather married secondly Edith Willis Linn, daughter of Dr. Frederick L. H. Willis. "A learned and honored man beloved by all who knew him," who died in Rochester, April 12, 1914, aged 84 years. From the age of fourteen to that of nearly twenty-four, he was constantly and intimately connected with the Alcott family as friend, boarder or guest and regarded as a son by the Sage of Still River Village and Concord, and by his wife, the "Marmee" of Little Women. The only boy playmate of Louisa Alcott and her sisters, and the "Laurie", hero of Louisa Alcott's classic. Associated with Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne and Margaret Fuller - as he expressed it - "A golden hour in his life when once he sat at the table with six of the eleven people that were destined to ultimate lofty status in American letters."

Edith Willis Linn Forbes, his daughter, is President of the Rochester Poetry Society. Has published several volumes and is still contributing to leading periodicals.

BRIDAL PRAYER OF DUKE AND DUCHESS OF KENT

WRITTEN BY MOTHER OF MRS. EDITH WILLIS LINN FORBES

Thanksgiving Greetings, 1934, Bring Mrs. Forbes Word of Honor

By Julius Kaufman

The bridal prayer of the Duke and Duchess of Kent, offered during their wedding in London, England, Thanksgiving Day, forged a direct link between that ceremony and Rochester.

The prayer consisted of the words of the famous hymn "Father Hear the Prayer We Offer," written by the late Love Maria Witcomb Willis, mother of Mrs. Edith Willis Forbes of 243 Alexander Street. Mrs. Forbes, widow of the late George Mather Forbes, professor emeritus of the University of Rochester, learned only yesterday that the hymn written by her mother had been chosen as the special bridal anthem at the Westminster Abbey service. The information was on a postcard bearing Thanksgiving greetings to Mrs. Forbes from Rev. Edwin L. Baker of St. Stephen's Church, New York.

Written in 1859

The hymn, written in 1859 by Mrs. Willis, who is buried in Mount Hope Cemetery, was a favorite with many prominent persons, including President McKinley and the famous English statesman, Gladstone.

Her mother, Mrs. Forbes said, was a writer of short stories, especially children's stories, both philosophical and religious. She wrote few poems and hymns. She was also an artist and her work gained her an enviable reputation.

Mrs. Willis was editor of Tiffany's Monthly, a philosophical magazine published in New York in 1865.

Hymn Declared Favorite of President McKinley And Gladstone

Scripture Text, Illustrated, written for Sunday School Students, which awakened considerable interest and controversy at that time.

She was born in Hancock, N. H., June 6, 1824. Her parents were Henry Whitcomb and Love Foster, who came to this country from White Combs or Cliffs of Dover, England. Mrs. Willis married Dr. Frederick L. H. Willis in 1858. Mrs. Forbes is the only surviving child.

Words Reflect Character

Mrs. Willis wrote the now famous hymn in New York. Her words present a clear picture of her remarkable character. The hymn follows:

H Y M N

Father hear the prayer we offer;
 Not for ease that prayer shall be,
 But for strength, that we may ever
 Live our lives courageously.
 Not forever in green pastures
 Do we ask our way to be;
 But the steep and rugged pathway
 May we tread rejoicingly.
 Not forever by still waters
 Would you idly quiet stay;
 But would smite the living fountains
 From the rocks along the way.
 Be our strength in hours of weakness;
 In our wanderings be our guide;
 Thro' endeavor, failure, danger,
 Father, be Thou at our side. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis made their home in their later years in Glenora on Seneca Lake, a few miles north of Watkins Glen. They also had a summer residence there and in the winter maintained an apartment in Rochester, Washington or Elmira.

It was in the latter city that she died on Thanksgiving Day, 1908, some twenty-six years to the day before her hymn was chosen for the internationally famous wedding ceremony.

President Rush Rhees of the University of Rochester:

"The death of Dr. George Mather Forbes closes a life of singularly effective activity as a teacher and high-minded citizen. He had rounded out more than 81 years, of which 45 were given to active and highly influential teaching in the University of Rochester. He was graduated here in 1878, having entered college with the class of 1874, but his college course was interrupted by teaching to earn money to continue his studies.

His latest years of college were devoted to philosophy, but he began as a teacher of Greek. This gave him a background of philosophical knowledge that was most valuable. It also served as an excellent foundation for his work in the field of education, for the teaching of which he was responsible from 1894 to 1919. This led to his work for and interest in the schools of Rochester, which he served as a member of the Board of Education for many years, being president of the board from 1909 to 1912.

The alumni of the University, who knew him as a teacher and friend, found in him one of the most stimulating influences of their lives. With Professors Morey and Burton he stood as a leader in their intellectual growth. Keenly logical in mind, he drew out the thinking power of his students by group and individual discussions. He was one of the most powerful forces that have built the intellectual life of our University.

He was a man of high character and earnest spirit. For many years he conducted an active men's Bible class in the Park Avenue Baptist Church, and he was always ready with helpful counsel for any student who appealed to him in intellectual or moral difficulties."

James M. Spinning, superintendent of schools:

"Doctor Forbes was professor of philosophy and psychology during my student years in the University of Rochester. His fine nature, his wide culture, and his breath of tolerance inevitable impressed itself upon the minds of all of us who had the privilege of his instruction. My class held Doctor Forbes in special regard and chose to dedicate its yearbook to him."

Mrs. Mary T. L. Gannett, one of the founders of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union and a leader in liberal civic movements:

"Doctor Forbes was one of the professors who welcomed women to the University of Rochester. He was a friend and co-operator in many good causes and was loved by all who knew him personally."

Harold W. Sanford, managing editor of the Democrat and Chronicle and a former student of Doctor Forbes:

"Professor Forbes was president of the Board of Education when I came to Rochester to enter the University of Rochester in 1903. No one coming new to the city in those days could long be unaware of the effects of the civic awakening on schools which was in full swing under his leadership. Later as a student in his classes in philosophy I was profoundly impressed with his balanced judgment and sound logic. Few men have contributed so much to the city's present eminence in education and to the underlying soundness of its civic life."

President John F. Kennedy

"The death of Dr. Robert Kennedy, brother of President John F. Kennedy, is a tragedy for the American people. He was a man of great courage and conviction, and his death is a great loss to the country. He was a man who believed in the principles of democracy and who fought for the rights of all Americans. His death is a tragedy for the American people, and we are all mourning his loss."

George Mather Forbes' genius lay in the quality of response stimulated by his teaching. He made intellectual interests seem alluring and practical, something worthy of attention outside of class. For many students his courses were the beginning of life-long reading and study undertaken for no purpose other than to satisfy a persistent desire to get to the bottom of problems perhaps forever insoluble, yet permanently worthwhile because their study broadens and deepens the minds and affects the practical lives of those who grapple with them.

He developed for me something which transcends the unreliability and weakness of memory and remains, paradoxically, not remembered but impossible to forget. This influence has been of two sorts: a constant stimulus to thought and study, which has kept me working for years on the problems he suggested and others developing from them, and an ideal of general education.

His was a determined effort to get at the meaning of life, to see some of its major problems, to attempt their mastery in some degree and to develop in young people something of what it signified to him, without strangling their minds by forcing them into the particular patterns of his own solutions. He was a humanist, a scientist and a citizen in the best and broadest sense of those terms.

ANOTHER ROCHESTER IMMORTAL

Editorial

(Taken from Rochester Alumni Review, December - January, 1934-35)

Another Rochester immortal has gone where only immortals live on, joining that other with whom his name was so often linked and his influence so often combined.

Let not the present generation assume that the passing of time has been kind to such as Professor Forbes and Professor Morey; that their greatness is but another case of the magnifying power of retrospect. Both teachers were in the full flower of their effectiveness during our undergraduate days. We had heard of them before coming to college. And throughout our underclass years this was the invariable counsel of seniors and alumni:

"Be sure to elect all you can of Morey and Forbes. Then you will be sure to take something away with you."

In common with most of our classmates, we followed that counsel, saw that it was good and passed it on. And so it was with every other class of that day. They were great teachers, whose greatness, demonstrated on every working day of their active lives, did not await death or the passage of time for recognition.

George Mather Forbes has passed on, but his influence lives in many minds and in countless places; his name and place are as permanently fixed as those of the University which he served.

Educator.

(From the National Cyclopedia of American Biography, Vol. XXII)

The educational interests of the United States had an outstanding representative in the generation that has just passed off the state of activity, in John Franklin Forbes, who for eighteen years was president of John B. Stetson University at DeLand, Florida, later was acting head of the department of psychology and ethics at the University of Rochester, New York, and more recently and until his death, president and the sole proprietor of the Rochester Business Institute, one of the most modernly progressive commercial schools of the country. Dr. Forbes had attained a national reputation as an educator of University caliber with especial reference to his remarkable ability for imparting to others knowledge, particularly of his specialties, philosophy, psychology and ethics and to his marked executive capacity. Possessed of a keen and highly cultivated intellect and a gift for organization and administration, he was one of those unusual men who readily make their way to the very front rank in whatever department of life they elect to exercise their talents. He had the rare faculty of attaching to himself, through ties of enduring friendship and esteem, the students and associates with whom he came in contact. Many thousands of these to whom he passed the torch of learning will carry on to the end that the light of understanding which he helped to kindle may never cease.

John Franklin Forbes was born in Middlesex, Yates County, New York, June 13th, 1853, son of Merrill and Maria (Palmer) Forbes. Merrill Forbes was born in Fort Ann, New York, June 3rd, 1821; died November 22nd, 1884, in Wyoming, New York, son of Philo and Nancy (Johnson) Forbes. Philo was born in Vermont, January 28th, 1775; died July 12th, 1821. He established an iron foundry at Ontario, New York. His wife was born March 8th, 1787; died March 2nd, 1861. Their sons, Merrill and Michael, twins, entered Madison University in the class of 1847. Merrill was ordained a minister of the Gospel at the Baptist Church, in Sodus, New York, where he met and married Maria Palmer, born in Sodus, New York, December 17th, 1828, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer, prominent residents of that town. She died in Wyoming, New York, at the age of 81 years. She was a woman of keen intellect, inspiring her children with a love for knowledge and truth--a great reader, deeply interested in all the subjects her sons taught and in all the questions of the day, up to the time of her death; a very able helpmeet to her husband in his pastoral labors which were always attended by marked success at Bethel, Marian, Walworth, Middlesex, Prattsburg, Fairport, Medina, Shelby, and Wyoming; in later life supplying at South Alabama, Ira, Napoli and East Randolph, New York, maintaining his residence in Wyoming, that state, until his death. Reverend Merrill and Maria Palmer Forbes were the parents of six children: 1-Merrill, of Warsaw, New York; 2-(Twins) George Mather of Rochester, New York; 3-John Franklin; 4-Lillian, married George Allen, a member of one of the pioneer families of Wyoming, New York; 5-Rose, a graduate of Wellesley College, married Reverend H. L. Hoyt, of Los Angeles, California; 6-Yale, a prominent insurance man of Brockport, New York.

John Franklin Forbes prepared for college at Middlebury Academy, Wyoming, New York, whence he entered the University of Rochester, in 1871. At the close of his Freshman year, he became principal at Castile, New York, and held that position for two years. His ability as a teacher in those early years commended him to the favor of a wealthy friend, who advanced him and his twin brother, George Mather, the funds with which to pursue elective courses in higher training in the cultured center of Europe. They specialized in psychology, pedagogy, logic, ethics, and commercial law in the best educational institutions of Berlin, Leipzig, and Paris. They also made extensive tours into Italy, France, Austria, and England, spending some time in Rome and Paris. Returning to this country, they again enrolled as students at the University of Rochester, being enabled through their intensive studies abroad, to pass their examinations for the sophomore year, taking the junior and senior years' courses in 1877 and 1878. They were awarded the Phi Beta Kappa key for having the highest standings in their class. They also captured the Davis prize for the best original orations delivered at Commencement; and drew the Sherman and Townsend fellowship.

Dr. Forbes' entrance on his career as an educator was made in September, 1878, when he accepted the chair of Latin and Greek in the State Normal School at Brockport, New York. He filled that post for seven years, and in 1885 was called to DeLand, Florida, to assume charge of DeLand Academy, founded by H. A. DeLand, of Fairport, New York. In 1886, John B. Stetson, the famous hat manufacturer, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, went to DeLand and became so deeply interested in the promotion of education there, and because of his regard for and confidence in Dr. Forbes, he gave the sum of one million dollars to build a university. The name of the institution was changed to John B. Stetson University, in honor of its greatest benefactor. New and handsome buildings were erected to place the institution on a university basis. Other wealthy men donated large sums for library and special buildings and contributed to the endowment fund.

Under Dr. Forbes' presidency of John B. Stetson University, it became nationally known and one of the most noted of the educational institutions in the South. A corps of fifty experienced educators was maintained and hundreds of students enrolled; nearly every State in the Union being represented in the Student Body when Dr. Forbes relinquished the duties of executive. He was given the degree Doctor of Philosophy by his Alma Mater, the University of Rochester, when he was elevated to the Presidency of Stetson. In 1894, he was given a nine months' leave of absence for study and travel abroad. He traveled in France, Switzerland, Italy, Algiers in Northern Africa, Egypt and the Nile Country, the Holy Land, Greece, and Turkey, and thence to Moscow, to see the crowning of Czar Nicholas II of Russia; thence to St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), Finland, Stockholm to Tronhyem, to North Cape, where he enjoyed a remarkable view of the Midnight Sun; thence to Christiana (now Oslo), the Capital of Norway; thence to Liverpool, and back to Florida. In 1895, Dr. Harper, then President of Chicago University, visited DeLand and was so favorably impressed with the work done at Stetson that he returned and arranged an affiliation with Chicago University, by which the students would receive full credit for work done, and every winter he sent fifty or more pupils who needed a mild climate or whose parents were spending the winter in the South.

After eighteen years devoted to the building up of John B. Stetson University, and seeing it well on its way as an institution of broad scope, Dr. Forbes resigned from the Presidency and returned to Rochester in 1903. In 1904-05, he had charge of the department of psychology and ethics at the University of Rochester, in the absence of his brother, George Mather, in Europe. In 1905, he purchased an interest in the American Drafting Furniture Company, in Rochester, with which business he was associated with his son, Leighton, for five years. Then, with his wife, daughter Vivien, his brother, George Mather, and the latter's daughter Florence, he again made a tour of Europe, including a visit to Edinburgh, Scotland, where the party discovered in the Hall of Justice, the beautiful statue and monument erected in memory of their ancestor, Duncan Forbes, of Culloden, presiding Justice of the Supreme Court from 1737 to 1747. They next visited Culloden House, just out of Inverness, Scotland, the Forbes' ancestral home and estate.

Upon his return to the United States, Dr. Forbes purchased a half-interest in the Rochester Business Institute after paying off all indebtedness, placing it on a strong financial basis, and thus aiding the institution to regain its former prestige. The Rochester Business Institute had a varied career from its establishment in 1863, through different administrations and at one location after another, until 1910 when Dr. Forbes and S. C. Williams purchased the interests of their associates, and five years later erected the new building on Clinton Avenue South, in Rochester, which was the last word in a structure for the purpose for which it was designed, both as to departmental arrangement and equipment, special attention being paid to the features of lighting, safety and sanitation. Later women were admitted to the courses, and under Dr. Forbes' association with the institute the curriculum was expanded to embrace study and practice for commercial teachers, accountants, secretaries, office executives with the introduction of psychology, ethics, pedagogy, commercial law, geography, civics, economics, advanced accountancy, salesmanship, public-speaking, filing and machine bookkeeping, in addition to the subjects previously taught. The institute's diplomas are recognized by the State Education Department of New York, which gives it the privilege of holding regents' examinations for its students in its own classrooms, it being one of the first group of commercial schools to be registered under the regulations prescribed by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York. Graduates of the institute have become prominent in the civic and commercial life of Rochester and other large centers, and are to be found in every State of the Union, and in England, Germany, India, Canada, Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Mexico and South America. During the World War period, in a single year, the institute enrolled one thousand nine hundred and eighty-seven pupils, and in the sixty odd years of its existence, has had a total of more than forty-three thousand students. Dr. Forbes' lectures on psychology and ethics were the very first of the kind to be undertaken by a private commercial school. They became very popular and drew commercial teachers of high schools from many parts of the Country to the summer courses conducted at the Rochester Business Institute. Dr. Forbes' evening classes had as students leading business men and their wives, bankers and well-known citizens. On invitation he spoke on salesmanship to employees in department stores. In one term he had eighty nurses from the hospitals and some from nearby towns, solving the problems of "How the friends of the injured should be dealt with 'sympathetically',--as well as the patient." In his conduct of these classes, he made the subjects so popular that he ^{was} invited to give lectures in New York City, Cleveland, Ohio, Des Moines, Iowa, San Francisco, California, Syracuse, New York, Montreal, Province of Quebec, Canada, Hamilton, Ontario, and in many other cities. In 1924 Dr. Forbes purchased his partner's interest in the Rochester Business Institute, becoming the president and sole owner of the institution.

Dr. Forbes was actively interested in social welfare work and other bodies having for their objective the common good. He was treasurer of the Social Welfare League, a director of the Public Health Nursing Association, a member of the educational committee of the Chamber of Commerce, a Trustee of the Provident Loan Society, all these organizations of the city of Rochester; and a member of the Psi Upsilon Chapter of the University of Rochester, and of the Rochester Historical Society. He was affiliated with the University and City Clubs of Rochester, a charter member of the Rochester Ad Club, and a member of the Genessee Valley Golf Club. The immediate religious interests of Dr. Forbes and his family were centered in the First Baptist Church of Rochester. His political obligations were made to the Republican Party, and his civic attachments were both enduring and of a very helpful character.

Dr. Forbes married, June 25th, 1879, Ida Higbie, born January 31st, 1859, daughter of Abijah Peck and Sara (Ross) Higbie of Penfield, New York, a descendant of William Peck, born in England, who was one of the founders of New Haven, Connecticut, a merchant by occupation, and a Trustee and Treasurer of Yale College. His son, Jeremiah, was born in London, in 1623, and in 1660 was a Professor at Yale, where he remained nine years. The Revolutionary ancestor, Abijah Peck, preached forty years in the Baptist Church at Clifton Park, New York, following the Revolutionary War. Her mother was of Scotch descent, also from near Inverness, Scotland, a cultured, charitable woman, much given to church work and good deeds.

Children of Dr. and Mrs. Forbes:

1 - Helen, graduate of John B. Stetson University, DeLand, Florida, Class 1902, A. B. She married (first), August 31st, 1905, Abram J. Mann, of Rochester, New York. He died March 31st, 1922. Children: Virginia, died age of nine years, in 1917; and Forbes Mann, born September 25th, 1918. She married (second) October 8th, 1926, at Paris, France, George Waller Parker, formerly of New York City, and a well-known artist in Paris. George Waller Parker was born in New York City. Graduate of Brown University, 1910. He studied draughtsmanship at The Art Students League in New York and later at Colorossi' and Academie de la Grande Chaumiere in Paris. He was, otherwise, taught in most of the principal countries of Europe, where he has exhibited his canvases at numerous times. He is a member of The Salmagundi Club, The American Art Association, Paris, and a member Hors Concours of the Societe Coloniale des Artistes Francais. In 1924 he was awarded the Plaquette de Grand Prix at Strasbourg, the highest award possible. He is represented in the permanent collections of The Newark Museum, The Sweet Memorial, Portland, and The Memorial Art Gallery, Rochester, N. Y., as well as many private collections in Europe and America. In 1933 he returned to N. Y., opening an art studio on Madison Avenue.

2 - Leighton, born December 29th, 1882, graduate of University of Rochester, Class of 1904, A. B.; married, July 15th, 1908, Stella Bailey, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Children: John Franklin Forbes 2nd, born June 26th, 1918; Jean, born July 21st, 1921; and Thomas Bailey Forbes, born July 1st, 1922. Leighton was associated with his father in the furniture business from 1905 to 1915 when he became District Manager for the Monroe Calculating Machine Co. of Orange, New Jersey, from Cleveland, Ohio, to Boston - Hartford - New Haven - Providence and now as far south as Miami, Florida, and west to the State of Texas.

3 - Vivien, born May 19th, 1887, graduate of Smith College, Class 1909, A. B.; married December 22nd, 1917, George J. Schmucki of Lucerne, Switzerland, graduate of Schwyz College, now European Manager for the Monroe Company and a resident of London, England. They have two children: George J. Jr., born in Rochester, November 23rd, 1919, and Beatrice Forbes Schmucki, born July 20th, 1922, at Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. John Franklin Forbes was called upon to lay aside the mantle of his well-rounded and intensely useful career in this sphere on March 30th, 1926. What he did in his lifetime will long endure to keep his memory undimmed in the hearts of thousands with whom his ministrations gave him contact. As school preceptor, college professor and president and commercial institute executive of the most progressive type, he accomplished a task more varied and more broadly helpful than performed by many men. His name is written high among those who have helped make the Flower City and its institutions famous.

It is eminently fitting that the conclusion of this memorial of Dr. Forbes should comprise tributes and testimonials from friends and associates highly placed in those channels of service in which he had so efficiently labored. They are an index of the esteem and affection in which he was held.

From United States Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, Trustee of Stetson University since 1886:

"Dr. Forbes was one of the finest characters I ever knew. His principles were fundamentally sound, his ideals were exalted, his aims and purposes were high and pure. His manners were most pleasing, refined and gentle. He loved his God and his fellow-men. He lived his religion. He was kind, forgiving and unselfish. He possessed talent of the highest order. He had a thoroughly trained mind. His education was broad and thorough. He was not only a thinker, but he had the rare gift of being able to impart it and to express it. His command of languages, graceful delivery, and clear understanding of his subject qualified him to an extraordinary degree as an orator and a teacher. Next to that of the minister (which really means teacher) the work of the teacher I regard as most important in our society. His example, his instructions and his work have inspired, stimulated, helped and blessed hundreds of girls and boys, men and women, who are enabled to impress their usefulness and power on countless others. The loss of such a man is a serious misfortune to the States and the public. Only the Supreme Comforter can heal the wounds in the hearts of his family."

From Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Solomon, of Dayton, Ohio, the former a Trustee of Stetson University, since 1886:

"The Doctor was a most lovable man, a wonderful executive, a great teacher, a splendid citizen, a grand Christian gentleman, a loving, tender husband and father. In superiority and brilliance was ahead of the most of us; yet so kind, so gentle, so modest, that he made the most ordinary man feel perfectly at home in his presence. To me this was one of his wonderful and charming characteristics."

From an editorial in the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, of March 31st, 1926:

"Rochester has reason to regret keenly the death of a man such as Dr. Forbes. By education and hard work, by travel and exercise of his remarkable talents, he had acquired a breadth of vision and an understanding of humanity and its problems such as are the possession of few men. But of far greater import to his fellow-citizens was the fact Dr. Forbes, having attained a situation in life where he might have viewed the world through golden spectacles, chose rather to continue his usefulness as an instructor, the more valuable because of his mellow experience. Dr. Forbes proved by his life that there is nothing inherently impossible in being both an educator and a business man, for in both fields he was pre-eminently successful. Moreover, he won success in both South and North, demonstrating that intellect knows no geographical or sectional barrier."

From Charles Herbert Rust, minister of Plymouth Church, Worcester, Massachusetts:

"Our dear Dr. John has gone. His brilliant mind, noble spirits, broad outlook on life, big soul, real love for humanity and great heart, meant more than words can express to me. He was a fine, discriminating interpreter of the religion of Jesus to men, and clarified the atmosphere of life's philosophy, wonderfully and best of all, lived as he taught and believed. His memory will be a daily comfort to you as it is to us, yes more so."

From Herbert S. Weet, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Board of Education, Rochester, New York:

"I count him among the ablest and mightiest souls that I have ever met."

From George S. Van Schaich, attorney-at-law, Rochester, New York:

"I knew him especially as a friend, a business man and as a citizen. No more loyal friend could ever be asked. His logical, active mind and high ideals made him a business man outstandingly successful. As to his citizenship, this was always his first thought. Social service and political reform had more than a full measure of his time and effort and ability.

I feel that in his passing not only the loss of a close friend but that Rochester owes him a debt of gratitude for the contribution which he has made to its social, political and professional life."

From the DeLand (Florida) News:

"He died at the age of seventy-three years, having made a noble contribution to several educational institutions, notable Stetson University, over which he presided during its early struggles and for eighteen years.

Dr. Forbes was called here by Mr. DeLand, but after the freeze it was only the beneficent work of John B. Stetson that saved the institution. Dr. Forbes was untiring in his work through all its struggles.

The charter of the DeLand Academy, which Dr. Forbes drew up, assisted by DeLand attorneys, was patterned after that of the University of Rochester, from which institution he was graduated with high honors. Other contributions of highest order were made to the institution by this man who endeared himself to a large number of friends scattered throughout the United States.

It was a well-known fact that Mr. Stetson greatly loved Dr. Forbes, and built the president's home for him to live in. He also paid $50,000 in cash to endow the president's chair, naming it the "Forbes Chair," in honor of his friend.

Dr. Forbes reciprocated these kindnesses by devotion to Mr. Stetson, and to the work during the years he was president of the institution of learning which made rapid growth under his administration."

Remarks made at the funeral of Dr. Forbes by Rev. Dr. Clarence Barbour, president of the Rochester Theological Seminary and Brown University:

"It is not my custom to say things other than read the scripture at funerals, but I cannot forbear saying other things this afternoon, because for me, like for all of you, this is no formal occasion, for someone who is very dear to us has passed on.

I would like to suggest three great characteristics which come to my thoughts as in personal sorrow I think of our friend who has gone from us.

Beyond most men that I have ever known he was wonderfully clear in his thinking and the expression of that thinking. How sorely we need that in these days of poor controversy when there is so much obscure thinking.

Then I think of his enthusiasm. Life becomes such a drab thing, such a routine thing to so many people. They have a measure of enthusiasm in their early years, but it all soon fades out. Here was a man who kept his enthusiasm. His enthusiasm in thought, teaching, everything he did, whenever and wherever you met him, was wonderful abounding enthusiasm.

And then to equal either of those was that steady and absolute loyalty. I believe that he was loyal steadily to his conception of the truth. He was loyal to those whom he honored with his friendship, who were bound to him by bands of steel. One could never imagine Frank Forbes saying a mean or unworthy thing or faltering in his loyalty to those who were dear to him. He was fair to all men. He was passionately loyal to those whom he loved. We cannot afford to lose men of that kind, men of enthusiasm, men of loyalty. I think of him as a Christian gentleman, who has gone on to the larger life."

TWO GOLDEN DAYS

"There are two golden days in the week upon which and about which I never worry -- two care-free days, kept sacredly free from fear and apprehension.

One of these days is Yesterday. Yesterday, with its cares and frets; and all its pains and aches; all its faults, its mistakes and blunders, has passed forever beyond my recall. I cannot undo an act that I wrought, I cannot unsay a word that I said. All that it holds of my life, of wrong, regret and sorrow, is in the hands of the Mighty Love that can bring honey out of the rock, and sweetest waters out of the bitterest desert.

Save for the beautiful memories, sweet and tender, that linger like the perfume of roses in the heart of the day that is gone, I have nothing to do with Yesterday. It was mine - it is God's!

And the other day that I do not worry about is Tomorrow. Tomorrow with all its possible adversities, its burdens, its perils, its large promise and poor performance, its failures and mistakes, is as far beyond my mastery as its dead sister, Yesterday. It is a day of God's. Its sun will rise in roseate splendor, or behind a mask of weeping clouds....but it will rise.

Until then, the same love and patience that held Yesterday, holds Tomorrow. Save for the Star of Hope that gleams forever on the brow of Tomorrow, shining with tender promise into the heart of Today, I have no possession in that unborn day of grace. All else is in the safe keeping of the Infinite Love that is higher than the stars, wider than the skies, deeper than the seas. Tomorrow is God's day. It will be mine.

There is left for myself, then, but One Day in the week - Today! Any man can fight the battles of Today. Any woman can carry the burdens of just One Day. Any man can resist the temptations of Today. O, friends, it is only when we wilfully add the burden of those two awful eternities - Yesterday and Tomorrow -- such burden as only the Mighty God can sustain -- that we break down. It isn't the experience of Today that drives men mad. It is the remorse for something that happened Yesterday, and dread of what Tomorrow may disclose.

These are God's Days -- Leave them with him!

Therefore, I think and I do, and I journey but One Day at a time. That is the easy way. That is Man's Day. Dutifully I run my courses and work my appointed task on that Day of ours. God -- the All-Mighty and the All-Loving takes care of Yesterday and Tomorrow."

THE JOURNAL

There are two things that I have seen in the world which I have never seen before. One is the power of the human mind, and the other is the power of the human heart.

One of the things that I have seen in the world is the power of the human mind.
